53 KILLED IN TUNNEL UNDER LAKE MICHIGAN

Explosion of Powder Causes Fire Which Burns Victims Beyond Recognition Accident Occurs More Than a Mile From Shore.

DEATH LIST, IT IS FEARED, WILL INCREASE

Many Missing Believed to Have Burned to Death or Drowned in Icy Water Men Were at Work on Water Tunnel for South Chicago.

CHICAGO, Jan. 20.—With a mile and a half of treacherous drifting ice cutting them off from ready communication with the shore, at least fifty-three workmen are included among the list of missing and the majority of these are known to be dead, as the result of a fire which had its origin today in a powder vault attached to the intermediate crib in Lake Michigan used in the construction of a new water tunnel connecting with the south side of the city at Seventy-third street. Ninety-five workmen were employed in the crib and in the connecting tunnel at the time of the fire.

The contracting firm of George W. Jackson and company, and the rescuers have been unable to arrive at anything like an accurate list of those who perished and others who escaped the flames or the icy waters of the lake.

Hospitals Filled With Injured.

The hospitals at South Chicago and in other parts of the south side are filled with injured. City fire boats, as well as the tugs of the construction company, are making frequent trips to the scene of the disaster through the heavy ice floes.

Owing to the difficulty the steam craft experienced in reaching the crib during the winter, the majority of the workmen employed on the work and particularly those who were without families, slept in temporary structures at the crib. Just as these had been awakened for the day's routine, the explosion and subsequent fire came.

So far as known, the explosion had its origin in a powder house of small dimensions situated about 100 yards from the crib structure proper, but at the same time being a part of the general structure built on foundations resting on the bottom of the lake. In this building, the George W. Jackson company stored enough powder and dynamite for urgent use in the work of constructing the water tunnel. In some manner, the deadly explosions were put into action. The dull detonation, muffled as it was by the crunching of floating ice against the crib and the atmosphere laden with heavy fog, simply aroused the attention of workmen, according to survivors, and it was not until the heat of the flames and the stifling smoke penetrated the so-called "living room" of the crib and the tunnel beneath the waters of the lake that the full import of the disaster dawned upon the little colony of workmen cut off almost completely from human succor.

Telephoned to Shore.

One of the workmen, with a cooler head than his fellows, abandoned the shouting and frantic group on the crib platform and made his way through the smoke to the little inclosure in which telephone communication had been established with the shore station. The drowsy attendant at this point received this message:

"The crib is on fire. For God's sake send help or we will be burned alive. The tug [illegible]." At this point communication ceased and through the fog an occasional burst of flames and an unmistakable odor of smoke made it known to the watchers on shore that a tragedy was probably being enacted a mile and a half out in the lake.

The tug T. T. Morford, in charge of Captain Johnson, had forced its prow earlier in the morning to an anchorage within a short distance of the imperiled crib and this was placed into service at the outset in the work of rescuing the frenzied workmen. The ice made it impossible for the tug to reach the improvised pier, but a small boat was placed in service to carry the injured to the tug and rescue those who had plunged into the waters of the lake rather than face the flames raging in the crib structure.

After several hours of rescue work, in which heroism stood forth even in

PRESIDENT'S REQUEST IS HEEDED BY CALIFORNIA

Action on Proposed Japanese Legislation Is Deferred for One Week.

REAL ALARM WAS FELT

Reassurances Coming From Pacific Coast Relieve Apprehensions Existing in Washington.

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Jan. 20.—Consideration of bills denying Japanese the right to own land or to be directors of corporations, was delayed for one week by the assembly this morning at the request of President Roosevelt and Governor Gillett. When these measures came up on a special order Preston of Mendocino county offered a resolution requiring the President to furnish the legislature with all documents and data in possession of the federal authorities bearing upon the Japanese situation. This was declared to be out of order. Then Mr. Drew moved that his bill denying Japanese the right to own land be made a special order for a week from today.

Grove L. Johnson, as father of the directors bill, opposed its postponement in an impassioned speech, declaring that the request of the President for delay meant nothing to the legislature, as the governor had not seen fit to transmit to the assembly a special message, and no such request was before the House. He said that the Japanese were increasing in numbers instead of decreasing, as stated by President Roosevelt, and there was urgent demand all over the state for action at once.

Drew Favored Delay.

Drew, who introduced the land bill, said that he was as anxious as anyone to have action on the bill, but he favored a delay of one week. On roll call the motion was carried, 42 to 34. Johnson's bill was then put over without roll call to the same date.

The assembly disposed of the controversy over the antirace-track bills, referring them to a committee by voting down a motion to reconsider the vote of yesterday.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—While such assurances have come from representative Pacific coast men regarding the improbability of any legislation in California adverse to the Japanese have undoubtedly done much to relieve the apprehension that exists in administration circles, it is a fact that deepest concern exists as to the future. Nothing that has happened in Congress or elsewhere recently has so absorbed the attention of the President and Secretary Root as the threatened Japanese legislation in California.

It was impossible for the President in his letter to Governor Gillett to tell all of the reasons that influenced him in making the vigorous and unprecedented protest he did against such action by the California legislature. He did develop the fact that under the agreement reached two years ago between America and Japan, not only had Japanese immigration into America largely decreased, but also that there had been an actual reduction in the number of Japanese residents in this country. He could not say that the projected California anti-Japanese legislation would undoubtedly cause the Japanese government to relax the efforts which it now is making to restrict coolie immigration to America, yet that thought was in the mind of the administration. There are other factors which for diplomatic reasons could not be mentioned in a letter which was sure to be published, but which which are well known to the members of the Senate and House committees on foreign affairs and which doubtless influence the conservative

AMERICANS INHABIT THE ISLE OF PINES

POLITICAL STATUS OF ISLAND OF MUCH MOMENT.

Many Improvements Made in the Belief That Land Is American Territory.

By Frederic J. Haskin.

VIII. An American Colony in the Tropics.

NUEVA GERONA, Isle of Pines, Jan. 14.—Whatever may be the outcome of the dispute as to the sovereign title to the Isle of Pines, it remains a fact, and will remain so, that in everything except sovereignty the Isle of Pines is thoroughly American. Ninety-five per cent of the property is owned by Americans. Ninety-five per cent of the cultivated land is tilled by Americans. The American settlers are living on their lands, building homes for themselves, founding towns and hustling. Everyone of them believes that President McKinley and Secretary of State John Hay were right when they interpreted the treaty of Paris to mean that the Isle of Pines was American territory. Most of the land owned by Americans was acquired upon the assurance of Mr. McKinley and the Washington government that the island would remain under the American flag. The people here are unanimous in expressing the belief that [illegible] Roosevelt and Secretary of State Root were mistaken when they reversed the decisions of their predecessors in office. They are unanimous in hoping that the Senate will continue to refuse to ratify the Isle of Pines treaty, thus keeping the question open.

Political Status of Moment.

The political status of the island is of great moment, of course, but the people are not limiting their activities because the question is still unsettled. They are going ahead with the development of the island. They are planting citrus fruit groves and pineapple fields, confident that fruit will grow in Terms of 31 Senators Expire at Beginning of the New Administration.

MAJORITY RE-ELECTED

Opponents of Chamberlain, Oregon, Declare Committee on Elections Will Not Seat Him.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—In event of the reelection of Senator Albert J. Hopkins of Illinois, 18 of the 31 United States senators whose terms expire with that of Theodore Roosevelt, as President, on March 4, next, will be sworn in to succeed themselves. Among the 13 new senators is included former Governor Cummins of Iowa, who is now serving out the unexpired term of the late Senator Allison.

The newcomers to the Senate will be the following: Wesley L. Jones of Washington, Theodore E. Burton of Ohio, George E. Chamberlain of Oregon, E. D. Smith of South Carolina, M. N. Johnson of North Dakota, Benjamin F. Shively of Indiana, Coe I. Crawford of South Dakota, Joseph L. Bristow of Kansas, W. O. Bradley of Kentucky, ex-Governor Fletcher of Florida, Elihu Root of New York, Charles J. Hughes, Jr., of Colorado; A. B. Cummins of Iowa.

Senators Brandegee of Connecticut, Clarke of Arkansas, Clay of Georgia, Dillingham of Vermont, Gallinger of New Hampshire, Gore of Oklahoma, Heyburn of Idaho, Johnson of Alabama, McEnery of Louisiana, Newlands of Nevada, Overman of North Carolina, Penrose of [illegible], Perkins of California, [illegible] of Utah, Smith of Maryland, Stephenson of Wisconsin, Stone of Missouri, all have been or will be re-elected.

The retiring senators, and their length of service were as follows: Ankeny, Washington, six years; Foraker, Ohio, twelve years; Fulton, Oregon, six years; [illegible], one year; Hansbrough, North Dakota, eighteen years; Hemenway, Indiana, five years; Kittredge, South Dakota, eight years; Long, Kansas, six years; McCreary, Kentucky, five years; Milton, Florida, one year; Platt, New York, twelve years; Teller, Colorado, twenty-four years.

Oregon Fight Over?

ATTORNEYS DISCUSS CHARTER LAW TODAY

WILL DECIDE ON CITY ELECTION QUESTION.

If Special Legislation Be Necessary Bill Will Be Prepared—Complete Election Figures.

In concert with other able lawyers of this city, the seven attorneys who have just been elected members of the charter convention to draft a charter for this city, will meet today to determine definitely the legal questions in connection with the municipal election next April and other law points in connection with the charter.

The law provides for a city election to be held in April of each odd-numbered year, and if the lawyers find that it is necessary to secure a legislative enactment postponing the city election in Colorado Springs until a charter is adopted by this city, they will take steps to draft a bill to this effect, which will be introduced in the present legislature.

May Need Special Authority.

It is also said that even though chapter 20 of the state constitution provides for charter government in cities, additional authority in the shape of special permission from the legislature must be secured when the charge goes into effect. If no election is held, the present officials will hold over until the adoption of a charter, and the election of officials named therein.

The absolute freedom from any cut-and-dried procedure on the part of the charter convention members is shown by the fact that thus far no caucus has been held, and no members mentioned for the offices of chairman, secretary, etc. The first meeting, which will be held in the City Council chamber at 11 o'clock Saturday morning, will probably be merely for the organization of the convention.

Complete Returns.

Returns from the three missing precincts on the election, which were received yesterday, substantially increase the majority of the Citizens candidates. City Clerk E. C. F. Whitaker is making the official count, which will probably be completed today. His figures will not be materially different from the following complete unofficial returns from the 29 precincts in this city:

Citizens ticket—Banning, 2,437; Bishoff, 2,646; Burgess, 1,753; Costello, 2,681; Chinn, 2,598; Eubank, 2,500; Fisher, 2,669; Fowler, 2,720; Gile, 2,684; Grimes, 2,402; Hall, 2,588; Harnan, 2,538; Hoagland, 2,714; Kistler, 2,317; Lunt, 2,460; Rafield, 2,483; Seldomridge, 2,707; Sharer, 2,588; Spurgeon, 2,506; Ullrich, 2,535.

People's—Anderson, 858; Craig, 980; Dean, 823; Dennis, 940; Fusselman, 937; Garstin, 811; Green, 877; Haas, 844; Hauve, 888; Hughes, 1,012; Kavanaugh, 882; Kerr, 1,077; Mayhew, 944; McKesson, 1,013; Montoya, 977; Peavey, 946; Price, 913; Robbins, 1,347; Sinton, 1,106; Stephens, 1,038.

McCaffery, candidate on both tickets, 3,316.

Burgess, Citizens, led his ticket with 2,753 votes. Robbins, People's nominee, ran away ahead of his ticket, securing 1,347 votes, or 239 more than the next highest candidate on that ticket. The vote of the Citizens nominees ranged from 2,402 to 2,753, and that of the People's candidates from [illegible] to 1,3[illegible].

LOCAL WOODMEN WINS BANNER FOR 1908

CAMP NO. 7225 INCREASED MEMBERSHIP BY 300.

Will Open New Lodge Rooms on February 3, With National Officers Present.

Fraternalism as exemplified by the Modern Woodmen of America was the theme of addresses delivered before a large assemblage in Woodmen hall, in the Robbins block, last evening, by J. O. Davis, national lecturer of the order, and by F. B. Easterly of Denver, state deputy head consul.

The occasion was also a mark of recognition of the splendid work of Colorado Springs camp No. 7226, M. W. A., in winning the new state banner for initiating more members during the last year than any other camp in Colorado. The banner will be given the place of honor in the new M. W. A. hall, in the Bacon block, at the formal dedication, to be held on Wednesday evening, February 3. The Royal Neighbors will unite with the Modern Woodmen in the dedicatory ceremonies, which are to be attended by Head Consul A. R. Talbot of Lincoln, Neb.; National Director E. E. Murphy of Leavenworth, Kan., and F. B. Easterly of Denver.

During the year Colorado Springs camp adopted more than 300 members, making the total membership more than 900.

"Fraternal societies are a force for good in the life of the nation," said Mr. Davis in his address last evening. "The doctrine of unselfishness needs to be taught today. The historian of the future will give a higher place to Luther Burbank than to Napoleon."

Mr. Davis cited the fact that during the distress following the San Francisco fire and earthquake, no member of the M. W. A. was in the bread line. More than $17,000 was distributed to members upon the scene of the disaster. He also referred to the remarkable growth of the order, and stated that he was confident Colorado would contribute more than its quota of new members during the present year.

Mr. Easterly complimented Colorado Springs camp No. 7226 upon winning the state banner. He spoke of the lodge room as a force for education, and cited the career of William A. Rodenburg, congressman from Illinois, who received his first inspiration for education in a M. W. A. lodge room in East St. Louis.

Mr. Davis and Mr. Easterly paid a visit to the Modern Woodmen sanitarium yesterday afternoon, and spoke in glowing terms of the future of that institution.

The design comprises the portrait of Lincoln in an eclipse, the only decoration being a spray of laurel leaves and the inscription "U. S. Postage" in a straight line at the top of the stamp with the numerals "1909, February 12, 1809," at the bottom. The color design will be red. The profile was taken from a copy in the Corcoran Art gallery in this city of St. Gaudens' [illegible]

SPRINGS MAY HAVE NEW THEATER TO COST JAMES F. BURNS $200,000

Plans Completed for Three Story Structure to Cover Entire 120 Feet on Pikes Peak Between Exchange Bank and Out West Building.

Following closely on the publication of the projected construction of other large buildings in Colorado Springs in the near future, comes the announcement of plans for the erection of a handsome opera house and store and office building by James F. Burns, on his property immediately west of the new Exchange National bank block, on the corner of Pikes Peak avenue and Tejon street. The improvement will cost from $175,000 to $200,000.

Mr. Burns has had this building under contemplation for years, but has recently had the plans drawn for the structure, and work will begin within three months. Bids will be advertised for shortly.

The building will occupy the Burns site with a frontage of 120 feet on Pikes Peak avenue, from the Exchange building to the alley on the west, and having a depth of 180 feet. The three-story, brick Durkee building on the east end of the site, will be entirely remodeled to conform with the west part of the new structure, which will replace half a dozen shacks. The shacks will be torn down and the Durkee building remodeled and fitted to the new structure, so that an entirely [illegible] block will be the result.

A Three Story Structure

This structure will be three stories high, and will be built of terra cotta, with a general [illegible] effect. The frontage on Pikes Peak avenue will be divided into four store rooms, each with 25 feet frontage and a depth of about [illegible] feet. With two stores on each side, an entrance to the theater, 20 feet wide and 50 feet deep, will be built in the most artistic and approved style. Negotiations are pending with several local merchants for the rent of these four stores, [illegible] and a department store [illegible] of Denver is dickering with Mr. Burns for the rent of the second floor, where he expects to open a branch of his Denver establishment. The third floor will be laid out in office rooms. In general, the front half of the building, 120 feet front and 90 feet deep, will be rented as stated, in five and ten-year leases, and the rear, or south half, will be devoted to the theater.

Theater Will Seat 1,500.

This will have a seating capacity of from 1,200 to 1,500 persons. It will contain but one balcony, in accordance with most recent theaters, and its furnishings alone will represent a small fortune. A fire wall will be built on the southern end of the building. Fire exits will lead out from all four sides of the structure. This is possible because Pikes Peak avenue and the alleys bound the front and two sides, and Mr. Burns will have a private alley on the east side.

It was originally intended to tear down the Durkee block, but an examination proved it to be absolutely safe and completely up to date, so far as the main reinforcements are concerned, so that the foundation and skeleton of the structure will not be disturbed.

The construction of this building, together with that of the Pikes Peak club, on the corner of Pikes Peak and Nevada avenues, C. L. Tutt building, just south of the Hagerman block, and other proposed structures, following so closely on the erection of the federal building and several magnificent dwellings in Broadmoor and other residence districts in and around Colorado Springs, shows conclusively that this city is on the wave of a new building era. Moreover, the permanent character of the structures, which are larger and generally far more costly than the ordinary, [illegible] the [illegible] of Colorado Springs.

DIES AT HOSPITAL AFTER NIGHT IN JAIL

WELL-KNOWN TOURIST DRIVER SUCCUMBS TO INJURIES.

Locked Up by Police Tuesday and Sent to the St. Francis Yesterday by Magistrate Gandy.

Bleeding internally from hemorrhage of the brain as the result of a fall while helplessly intoxicated, W. W. O'Bryant, aged 47 years, and for many years a carriage driver of this city, was picked up by the police in the alley back of the postoffice Tuesday afternoon, confined in jail all night, and died yesterday afternoon, several hours after his removal to St. Francis hospital. He was unmarried, and has no relatives in this part of the country.

A post-mortem examination, held last night by County Physician E. L. McKinnie and Drs. Williams and Brown, disclosed the fact that O'Bryant's injuries were caused by a fall, and not by assault, as was thought at first.

O'Bryant had been drinking heavily during the last few days, and made a round of the Colorado City saloons Tuesday. He returned to Colorado Springs Tuesday afternoon, and about 4 o'clock was found unconscious in the postoffice alley. Without having him examined by a physician, and not regarding his condition as critical, the police thought that he was merely drunk, and put him in jail for the night.

When O'Bryant was arraigned for intoxication in police court yesterday morning, the terrible nature of his injuries was at once noted by Magistrate Gandy, and he was removed to the hospital.

Funeral arrangements will await an investigation as to his relatives.

As the result of a fight which occurred in the sand house at the Midland yards last Monday night, "Blackie" Burns, James Quinn, Michael Shearden and J. O'Brian were arrested by Sheriff Birdsall and Night Captain Rowan of the Colorado City police force at midnight in Colorado City. Other arrests may be made.

The officers learned of the fight while making an investigation upon the theory, which at first was entertained, that W. W. O'Bryant, whose death occurred as the result of a fall, had been [illegible] in Colorado City.

HUGHES ONLY REAL DEMOCRAT TO ENTER U. S. SENATE FROM COLORADO

So States Lieutenant Governor Fitzgarrald in Introducing Teller's Successor to Joint Session of Assembly.

Special to The Gazette.

DENVER, Jan. 20.—Charles J. Hughes, Jr., has received his commission as the only real Democratic senator ever sent from this state to the Congress of the United States. This was emphasized this morning when he was introduced to the joint session by Lieutenant Governor Fitzgarrald, who said he was a real Democrat.

Few ceremonies attended the canvassing of the vote. At noon the two houses met in joint session in the house of representatives chamber, the journals of house and senate of yesterday were read, the lieutenant governor officially announced that Charles J. Hughes, Jr., had received a majority in each house, Mr. Hughes was sent for and the governor presented him with his commission, duly signed, sealed.

Former Gov. C. S. Thomas, [illegible] Gov. J. B. Orman and a [illegible] former members of [illegible] present, but no former senator of the United States.

[illegible] Few Pledges.

Some of the notable things of the senator's address was what he did not say. It was a lawyer's brief, skidding away from anything of promise on which the author could afterwards be held. The one reference to promises came toward the close when he said he did not think it necessary for him to add anything to the addresses he had made during the campaign. The nearest he came to saying anything definite was in his references to the forest reserve policy of the government, when he took about the same position on those matters held by Governor Shafroth, and said he would protect the state against the aspirations of the [illegible]

[illegible] Hughes in office. The senate received from the governor the nomination of John C. Bell, former congressman, and E. M. Ammons, former state senator, on the state board of agriculture, and promptly confirmed them both. Later the governor said he would not make any statement about the possible policy of the board of agriculture concerning the troubles at the college. "We will go up there after a while," he said, "and look into affairs."

The house recalled the resolution to print the governor's message in pamphlet form and killed the matter. Mr. Hicks said it was the governor's wish that the document should not be printed.

A committee today reported adversely to the printing of a bill. It was that introduced by Mr. Blakey of Leadville, to have mineral claims 600 feet wide, instead of 300. Mr. Blakey found almost the entire membership of the committee on mines and mining opposed to his bill, so agreed to its being killed. Lake county may take the matter up later and vote upon it, as lawyers claim it may do.

PROHIBITION FOR TENNESSEE

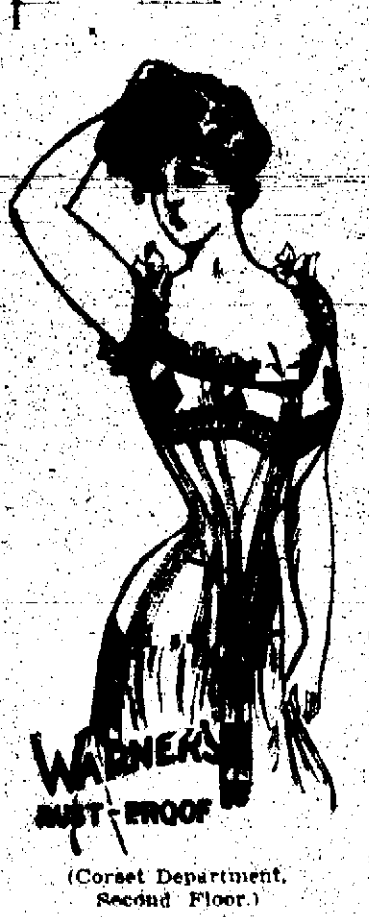

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Jan. 20.—Over the veto of Governor Patterson, both houses of the legislature today passed the senate bill which prohibits the sale of intoxicating liquors within four miles of a school house in Tennessee, and is in effect a statewide prohibition act. It is effective July 1, 1909. In each house the passage was effected through a combination of Republican and State-wide Democratic strength. The bill to prohibit the manufacture of intoxicating [illegible] declared that Chamberlain, having received a majority in each house, was duly elected. No joint vote was taken.

SENATE WILL HAVE 13 NEW MEMBERS MARCH 4

Opponents of Chamberlain allege they have positive assurance that the committee on elections will not seat him. This will be done, they aver, because Oregon's method of electing senators is now being advocated by New York and other states, and the only way to prevent the spread of the Oregon idea is to reject Chamberlain when he presents his credentials.

A measure was introduced in the house making it a misdemeanor to take statement No. 1, or make any pledge on the senatorship when a candidate for the legislature. It provides a fine and imprisonment as a penalty, and also provides that anyone that should be elected after taking the pledge shall not be seated.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Jan. 20.—Late tonight the members of the state legislature favorable to Hopkins signed an agreement to stand as a unit in voting for him. Those who attended the conference declared they were in the fight to the finish. It was estimated by those present that more than 60 names were placed on the document, and that all who attended, whether they signed or not, declared they were with Hopkins.

TOKIO, Jan. 21.—Marquis Katsura, the premier, opened the house of lords at noon today and in his speech dwelt upon the cordial foreign relations existing at present between Japan and other powers which, he declared, were especially favorable at this time. He said that it behooved Japan to use her best efforts toward the development of the nation's internal resources; that the alliance with Great Britain had resulted in strengthening the bonds of friendship and mutual good will with that country and that a satisfactory exchange of notes with America had removed all misunderstandings between Japan and the United States, whereby peace in the far east was absolutely assured.

Referring to the finances of the empire, Marquis Katsura said that special attention was being paid toward balancing the expenditures of the nation with the known receipts and that it was the intention of the department of finance to devote a large share of its attention to national development. The premier closed with asking the co-operation of the members of the house of lords.

The lower house opened at 1 o'clock and Premier Katsura made a similar speech before the representatives.

COLORADO DAIRYMEN SEEK TO EFFECT SOME REFORMS

DENVER, Jan. 20. The Colorado Dairymen's association met today and took radical steps for the increase of the industry throughout the state and for the enactment of legislation which will insure purity of dairy products to consumers. The association has secured the services of an expert, who will be under salary constantly from the association, and who will determine the proper methods to be used by the dairymen of the state. A committee on legislation was also appointed and agreed upon the measures to be submitted to the legislature. Those measures include the appointment of efficient local and state dairy commissioners, a system of registration of all herds and individual cows by a permit given after inspection; the erection of a model dairy plant at the State Agricultural college, the inspection of all cattle imported for breeding, the legalizing of a medical milk commission and a system of grading dairy products by the commissioner and the publishing of those grades.

the heavy fog and drifting smoke, 39 workmen were rescued. Friends in Mental Agony.

As the news of the disaster spread thousands of anxious men, women and children stood shivering on the lake shore, hour after hour, as the tugs laboriously plowed their way through the ice floes with their cargoes of burned victims.

The fire boat Illinois was obliged to remain some distance from the burning crib, but while powerful streams were directed upon the burning structure, small boats transferred the dead and wounded to the Morford, Conway and other tugs.

The scenes on shore and in the morgues were rife with sorrow and desolation. Women thinly clad offered money to owners of small boats to be taken to the scene of the disaster. Children cried and as each boatload of victims was carried ashore by the police and transferred to the waiting patrol wagons and ambulances, force became necessary to keep the bereaved from attempting the task of identification there and then.

The tunnel, of which the crib is part of the constructive work, was being built by George W. Jackson and company. The first section of the tunnel starts from the shore. The crib, a mile and a half out, marked the beginning of the second section being built still further into the lake. The two sections had not joined each other as yet. The superstructure of the crib was a barn-like building of two stories. It was surrounded by a narrow platform, or pier. Under it a shaft of steel and concrete, about twenty feet in diameter, ran down 100 feet, where the tunnel proper began. Normally there were from seventy-five to ninety men employed, working in three shifts of eight hours each.

Went Ashore Seldom.

A tramway, consisting of strong steel cables from which huge buckets were suspended, gave physical connection with the shore. There was also a telephone. In summer, the men were taken to and from their work by the tug Morford, but in winter this was impossible. The men were housed in the crib and took their meals there. Supplies were sent out by the suspended trolley.

Until such time as the rescuers are able to enter the water tunnel it will not be known how many perished below the surface of the lake. Air pressure was used in this portion of the work and as the generation plant became disabled soon after the fire started, it is thought certain that those who were at work in the tunnel must have perished. The smoke in the tunnel would make breathing next to impossible.

Many survivors kept themselves afloat by clinging to the ice after they had jumped from the burning crib. It is known that at least three who sought safety in this manner were drowned, but the majority were taken aboard the tug Morford. The boat was overloaded on the first trip to the shore and 19 of the suffering passengers were put off at the nearby in-take station of the water works system. All were suffering from cuts or burns and benumbed by the cold. Those who remained on the tug were taken to south Chicago, where the survivors for the first time had a chance to identify each other.

"I made a raft of a cake of ice," said one.

"I was a passenger on a cake of ice the same as you were" said another.

"It must have been you I saw on a large cake that passed me."

Private Homes Thrown Open.

The south shore was transformed into a series of receiving hospitals for the care of the injured. Private homes were thrown open by the residents, but the need for physicians and nurses was small after the tugs had made two or three trips to the shore. From that time until darkness hid the smoldering crib from the watchers on shore, the boat loads consisted of silent forms piled in heaps upon ice-coated decks.

The majority of the bodies taken from the ruins of the crib were found near the mouth of the tunnel, the terror-stricken men evidently rushing to this spot as a last hope as the flames crept toward them. Not a remnant of clothing was found on the mutilated bodies of the workmen who had perished in the flames.

Bodies Conveyed to Shore.

The tug Sabine conveyed 10 bodies to shore after the ice had been separated sufficiently to permit of the progress of steam craft and these were wrapped in burlap and taken to undertaking rooms.

From Seventy-first to Seventy-ninth street the shore was lined by thousands of men, women and children who were powerless to lend aid.

When the news of the disaster spread, the public schools were deserted and weeping wives, with their children huddled about them, watched anxiously for the return trips of the struggling craft carrying their cargo of injured and dead.

"The calamity is rendered all the more heartrending" said Coroner Hoffman, "because relatives will find it next to impossible to identify their dead. Among all the bodies that have been placed in undertaking establishments, not one is recognizable. Every particle of clothing has been burned away and features have been charred beyond recognition."

Forty-six Missing.

According to the records of the George W. Jackson Construction company, forty-six men are missing.

Acting on a report that men have been seen clinging to ice floes some distance from the scene of the disaster, Fire Chief Horan has ordered the fire tug Illinois to patrol the lake in the vicinity of the crib during the night in the hope of making rescues.

The police already have started an investigation with a view to placing the responsibility for the disaster and Coroner Hoffman is impaneling a jury and will continue the inquest for a week. In the meantime, George W. Jackson, owner of the construction company, has arranged to provide burial plots for the victims, the majority of whom depended upon their hazardous toil in the tunnel for a living for themselves and their families.

DENVER STOCK SHOW RATES.

The National Stock Show and Horse fair at Denver, January 18-23, will be one of the big events of the year. It will be held in the new National amphitheater, just completed, and will continue every day and evening during the week. The new amphitheater is steam heated, lighted and has seats for 6,000 people. The evening exhibitions in the large arena will be a most novel and attractive sight. The Colorado & Southern will make a rate of one fare for the round trip, good on all trains on January 17 and 18 and 20 and 21, final limit January 25.

AMERICANS INHABIT THE ISLE OF PINE

this fertile country whatever may be the flag that flies over the custom house.

The Isle of Pines lies a little south of Cuba. It is about the size of the state of Rhode Island, and is naturally divided into two sections, northern and southern, by a salt marsh. The northern section is the larger, and it is the only part which has been developed. The southern section is heavily timbered with hardwood trees and was wholly uninhabited until after the Americans came. There is now a small colony at work getting out hardwood lumber, but there is no permanent settlement. The hardwood forests of this section of the island will produce millions of dollars worth of rare lumber.

Live Near Nature.

The Isle of Pines was first visited by Columbus, but it was not occupied until the Spanish government in Havana made it a penal colony. There has been some agriculture for centuries, but no general development until now. The native inhabitants, the Pineros, live as near to nature as possible. Their houses are the thatched huts, or bohios, familiar in Cuba. They live with very little work, for the remarkably productive soil yields them sustenance with almost no cultivation. The banana is everywhere, and with a banana patch in the backyard, the wolf at the door is not to be feared.

Geologically, the Isle of Pines is very interesting. It and a portion of the province of Pinar del Rio in Cuba form the oldest land known in the American hemisphere. It is a striking coincidence that this island and Pinar del Rio have the only lands on earth which will produce the famous vuelta abajo tobacco. The Isle of Pines has a huge mountain of white marble. It is owned by a Pittsburg millionaire, but it is not being developed. Many years ago the marble quarries of this mountain were worked, and there are handsome staircases and mantels in Havana houses which attest the beauty of the Pinero marbles.

As Tobacco Field.

Havana cigar manufacturers now deny that the Isle of Pines will produce true vuelta abajo tobacco. Nevertheless, it is a fact that in the years 1896, 1897 and 1898, when the war was on in Cuba, all Havana cigars were made of tobacco grown in the Isle of Pines. When the war ended and agriculture was resumed in Pinar del Rio, the tobacco industry in this island perished. Only last year tobacco grown on the Isle of Pines was accepted by Havana experts, who were deceived into believing it came from Pinar del Rio. It is possible that the business will be revived here, and the leaf shipped to the states for consumption.

The Americans here are going in for fruit growing. William Mason, a New York silk factor of great prominence, has the oldest and finest citrus groves on the island. Mr. Mason's two sons, Yale men, are actively in charge of the plantation and stay here the year round. A net profit of $100 an acre in a poor citrus fruit year is not so bad, and the Messrs. Mason are entirely content with their island home in the summer season.

At McKinley, a settlement named in honor of the President, there is one of the biggest orange groves in the world. It has 500 acres of citrus trees, all of which will come into bearing next year. The immigration from the United States is increasing all the time. The land owners of the island are selling their property to actual settlers. There is no absentee landlordism to contend with in this American colony.

Setting Out Fruit Trees.

Driving from the McKinley grove to the McKinley town site, one sees acres of ... hard at work clearing away the pine trees and getting ready to set out fruit trees. On the drive from Santa Fe to Jucero, over a highway built during General Wood's administration, one is never out of sight of the bright green leaves of the orange, grape-fruit, lime and lemon trees. Grape-fruit will be the making of the Isle of Pines. Oranges here are delicious, but the grape-fruit has a superiority that is all its own. Pineapples grow here to a size that is almost unbelievable, and their flavor is most delicious. There is no doubt that the Isle of Pines is a fruit country.

The question is, how to get the fruit to the market. It must be shipped to Batabano, transferred by rail to Havana and thence by ship to New York. Fruit shipped in this way is paying big returns to the grower, but there is a very heavy freight charge which may mean disaster. The colony is fortunate in the classes of men composing it. There are several very wealthy men who have come here to have winter homes and grow fruit as a side line. The great majority are men of moderate means, who have come here for health, to escape the northern winters, and who must make their living out of the soil. The wealthy men will establish a steamer line to take the produce of the island directly to the United States as soon as there is enough to justify the venture. This line will carry the fruit raised by the small farmers as well.

There are four or five different development companies at work in the island. One of them is now building a handsome hotel at McKinley, which will be equipped with water and gas and all conveniences. It is designed merely to accommodate settlers who come here to put out orchards and who do not, for any reason, wish to build houses for themselves.

Not far away is San Rosario springs, a warm mineral water spring of great medicinal value. A tourist hotel and a sanitarium are to be built here by the Americans who own the property. The waters and baths at Santa Fe, in that, will attract more tourists.

Thousands Spent on Roads.

During the present American intervention in Cuba, nearly $200,000 has been spent in building roads. These highways are as good as can be found anywhere, and they connect all of the principal points of the island. A sight-seeing automobile makes the circuit of all the places every day, assuring good passenger transportation facilities.

The settlers have come from all parts of the United States, but most of them are from western New York, Ohio, Michigan and Wisconsin. Handsome homes have been built, and there is no lack of the comforts of life for those who will take the trouble to provide means of obtaining them. Twenty business men of Cleveland, O., have gone into a syndicate and have purchased a large tract of land near Nueva Gerona. Each reserves two acres upon which he will erect a bungalow and lay out a winter home. The rest of the land will be put into citrus fruit and pineapples, to be cultivated and managed for the syndicate.

Like every other American pioneer colony, the settlers have brought with them the church, the school and the printing press. There are all kinds of lodges and societies, and the social life is American in every respect. The native population is absolutely nil, so far as the Americans are concerned.

One of the best institutions connected with the Isle of Pines is the steamer Cristobal Colon, which plies between Batabano, Cuba, and the two Pinero ports of Nueva Gerona and Jucero. Not only is it a comfortable boat, but it carries Felix Primavesa, the purser. The captain of the ship is a Cuban, of course, but the purser is everything else. "Felix" is an American of German birth and Italian ancestry. He speaks almost any language, and he is always in a good humor. He is the agent of everybody in Havana to do errands in the Isle of Pines, and everybody in the Isle of Pines burdens him with their "chores" to be done in Havana. He never forgets. In reality, he is the whole thing on the Cristobal Colon, and, although not a cannibal, he might well sing:

O, I am the cook and the captain bold,
And the mate of the Nancy brig,
The midshipmite and the bo's'n tight,
And the crew of the captain's gig.

And Jack ashore—well, let it be known that Felix leads the singing at church on Sundays, and none but he passes the contribution plate. Take a trip to the Isle of Pines. You'll find a whole lot of hustle and bustle and beauty. And Felix will ferry you over.

ESSENCES RESTORE STOMACHS

Dyspeptics Everywhere Now Using Them—Cut This Out.

Are you ever "blue?" If before breakfast, dinner and supper you do not feel a hearty hungry feeling and longing for food of almost any kind, if you feel finicky and want something to eat but can't say what, then you are most likely bordering on chronic dyspepsia.

If you feel bloated, have heartburn, sour stomach, bad breath, and feel languid, dull or nervous and irritable then you surely have need for the following simple recipe, which it is claimed has cured many famous people. Prescribed for many years with the utmost success, its power over stomach disorders is now well known and probably lies in the peculiar blending properties of concentrated essences. Get two ounces of syrup of ginger, two ounces of essence of pepsin and one ounce compound essence cardiol. Mix altogether. Then take one or two teaspoonfuls after each meal. To excite appetite, take a spoonful before eating. May be taken freely by adults and children with weak stomachs, as it contains no opiate.

CONTEMPLATE SECOND MATRIMONIAL VENTURE

Both Ganson Depew and Divorced Wife May Remarry—Buffalo Not Surprised.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 20.—Society in Buffalo is awaiting news that both Ganson Depew and his divorced wife are about to choose new helpmates, but no definite word has been received from Colorado and Mr. Depew will not discuss his family affairs.

Since Mrs. Depew was granted a divorce in Colorado, Ganson has kept his residence in Buffalo at the home of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Goodyear, wife of the millionaire lumberman and chief owner of the Buffalo and Susquehanna railroad. That her daughter has divorced Depew has not interrupted the friendly relations between Mrs. Goodyear and her former son-in-law, and it is stated that when it is Ganson's turn to have custody of the two children they will be brought to Mrs. Goodyear's house, where their father lives.

The news of the Depew divorce was no surprise to Buffalo. Since the nephew of Senator Chauncey M. Depew married the daughter of the millionaire Goodyear, there have been rumors of disagreement.

Mrs. Depew is a high-strung woman, fond of society, while her husband is of a quiet disposition. When the divorce was granted (January 8) the complaint was withheld from publicity, but in the 15 minutes' trial of the case Mrs. Depew testified that her husband had thrown a picture frame at her, cursed her, and had opened letters addressed to her which he afterward sealed again and remailed to her." He admitted this when charged with the offense, she said.

ROOT AND KNOX MAY BE CALLED IN CANAL CASE

Connection With Transaction Referred to in Newspapers Makes Them Important Witnesses.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Secretary Root and Senator Knox of Pennsylvania may be asked to appear before the federal grand jury now investigating in the District of Columbia the alleged Panama libel cases involving the New York World and the Indianapolis News.

Secretary Root was secretary of war and Senator Knox was attorney general at the time of the purchase and conducted the negotiations for the property in behalf of the United States government. Their knowledge of the history of the purchase, it is believed, will lead the jury to ask them to testify. William Nelson Cromwell also probably will be subpoenaed. The next sitting of the grand jury will be on Friday and will be continued on Monday. Attorney General Bonaparte declared tonight that the statement which he will issue concerning the case will not be ready before Friday night and probably not until later.

BROWNSVILLE AFFAIR IS AGAIN DISCUSSED

FORAKER ANXIOUS ABOUT BILL TO REINSTATE MEN.

Naval Appropriation Bill Consumes Considerable Time in the House—Lilley Case.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—The Brownsville affair was taken before the Senate today, Senator Frazier of Tennessee speaking in opposition to the passage of any measure for the reenlistment of the discharged soldiers of the Twenty-fifth regiment. He insisted that the guilt of some men of the regiment had been established beyond any doubt, although the individuals who had committed the crime had not been determined. Mr. Foraker announced that he would move next Monday to take up his bill to reinstate the soldiers, unless an agreement on a time to vote for the measure is made sooner.

The legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill was under consideration also. At 4:49 o'clock the Senate adjourned.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—After adopting without opposition a resolution by which Governor George F. Lilley of Connecticut ceases to be a member of Congress, the House today proceeded with the naval appropriation bill. There were few amendments offered to the measures, items under discussion being those of maintenance and improvements to navy yards, stations and other public works of the navy. Representative Foss of Illinois, chairman of the naval affairs committee, had charge of the bill on the floor, and Representative Tawney of Minnesota, Fitzgerald of New York, Gaines of Tennessee, Macon of Arkansas and others spoke. Representative Mann of Illinois occupied the chair during the consideration of the bill, which probably will have the attention of the House on Friday. The House adjourned at 5:17 this afternoon.

HARTFORD, Conn., Jan. 20.—Governor Lilley this afternoon gave out this statement:

"On December 11, 1908, I filed with Governor Woodruff my resignation as congressman-at-large. Governor Woodruff declined to accept the resignation on the ground, as I understand, that a special election to fill the vacancy would cause an expense to the state which he thought would be unwarranted because of the short time my successor would occupy the office.

"I understand and am advised that my office as congressman-at-large terminated on January 5, 1909, by my resignation, or on Jan. 6, 1909, by my inauguration as governor of this state. The action taken by Congress today is declaratory of the fact of the vacancy, and I have no criticism to make on the propriety of the action."

UNITED MINE WORKERS CRITICISE JUDGE WRIGHT

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Jan. 20.—The twentieth annual convention of the United Mine Workers of America heard today the reports of President Lewis, Vice President White and Secretary-Treasurer Ryan. In speeches this afternoon, unfavorable comment was made upon the decision of Judge Wright, sentencing Gompers, Mitchell and Morrison.

Mr. Mitchell declared, in a letter read to the convention, that though he presided over the convention which passed the resolution putting the Buck Stove and Range company on the "unfair list," resulting in Judge Wright's ruling, he was in no wise personally responsible for the resolution.

Secretary Ryan, in his report, urged the organization of a labor party.

Congressman W. B. Wilson of Pennsylvania declared the Wright decision put a padlock on a free press and free speech.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—An offer of $75,000 for a match between Jeffries and Johnson has been made by John L. Sullivan, according to a statement made by the former heavyweight champion today, who is playing at a local theater here. He stated that he represented a number of men who were willing to put up the money.

"In the meantime," said Sullivan, "I am trying to find a good man to take Jeffries' place in the event that he will not re-enter the ring, and I will find somebody."

He added that the place for the fight has not been decided, but that San Francisco is under consideration.

LARGER SALARY FOR THE PRESIDENT.

NOW that the Senate has voted to increase the salary of the President to $100,000 a year and that of Justices of the Supreme Court to $13,000 for the Chief Justice and $14,500 for each of the Associate Justices, it is almost certain that the measure will become a law. This subject has received considerable discussion in recent years and has steadily grown in public favor, and when two years ago Congress voted a fifty per cent increase of the salaries of its own members the probability of more liberal compensation for the President and Supreme Court Justices became almost a certainty.

In the beginning of our Government the salary of the President was fixed at $25,000 a year and remained at that figure until the beginning of President Grant's second term, when it was doubled. Prior to February 1903 the Chief Justice of the Supreme Court received $10,500 and the Associate Justices $10,000 each, but at that date the appropriation was raised to $13,000 and $12,500 respectively.

The increase voted by the Senate a few days ago is really much less than it should be in the case of the Justices, but in that of the President it is entirely adequate, although it cannot be said to be [illegible]. Fifty thousand dollars a year is a [illegible] compensation than twenty-five thousand a year was a century ago when the cost of living and many conditions was much less than now, and when the official life of Washington was much simpler and the financial burden of entertaining [illegible] lighter. No President, however thrifty and economical he may be, can save anything from the present salary, even though he is allowed a number of perquisites such as the use and maintenance of the White House, servants, carriages, etc., which in themselves probably amount to more than his salary. Some relief was given two or three years ago when Congress voted an annual appropriation for the President's traveling expenses, but even with these perquisites the drain on the Presidential purse is so severe that an executive is fortunate to end his term without going in debt or making considerable inroads on his private fortune, if he is so lucky as to possess one.

NOT LIKE OLD WORLD SOVEREIGNS. Of course it is not the desire of those who favor increasing the President's salary to emulate the example of European governments which make excessively large allowances to their heads. For instance, the President of France receives a fixed salary of $250,000 a year and in addition has the use of two palaces, the upkeep of either of which is vastly greater than that of the White House. The allowances made by the British government in one form or another to the royal family are absurdly large and the same is true of the revenues received by the emperors of Germany and Russia, but of course there is no reasonable basis of comparison between our own case and theirs. It is not a question of the ability of the United States to remunerate its Chief Executive, nor should the amount be determined by comparison with the sums allowed in Europe; it is simply a matter of determining what amount is necessary to enable the President properly to maintain the dignity of his position.

As for the Justices of the Supreme Court they should at least be given salaries in some degree commensurate with the earning capacity of lawyers of their ability engaged in private practice. In this country, judicial salaries are absurdly low, in State as well as Federal courts, and it would be entirely proper for Congress to vote at least a fifty per cent increase all along the line, applicable to judges of the District and Circuit courts as well as to those of the Supreme Court.

'TWIXT THE DEVIL AND THE DEEP SEA.

WITHIN a week after his inauguration, Governor Shafroth finds himself in a somewhat embarrassing predicament. In his inaugural message he went out of his way to administer a rap to the Government Forest Service, and now he has a request from Mr. Pinchot that he recommend to the legislature a bill giving authority to the Government forest rangers to act as state fire wardens. Governor Shafroth is too sensible a man not to recognise that such a measure would be advantageous to the state, and we hope he will show himself too sensible to refuse the request of the Chief Forester simply because his position as leader of the Democracy in Colorado made it incumbent on him to express views regarding the National Forest Service which are traditional with that ever recalcitrant party.

Requests of the Federal Forest Bureau for similar action have uniformly met favorable response from governors and legislatures of other states, and so long as conditions remain the same, it would be foolish to refuse this request, merely because of differences of opinion as to the power of the Federal Government over the forests. There should be, as the Governor is reported to have said in an interview, a settlement of this vexing question of State or Federal supremacy, in the shape of strict definition by the courts of the powers of both [illegible] forests, waters and lands; but pending such [illegible] opposition to the proposed extension of [illegible] of the Forest [illegible], as requested by Mr. Pinchot, would be nothing short of demagogic folly.

Governor Shafroth deserves sympathy in his predicament, even though it be one of the penalties which he must have known he would have to pay, when he permitted himself to be raised to his exalted position on the back of that perpetual kicker, the Democratic mule.

The new legislature of New Mexico evidently does not believe in procrastination, for immediately upon convening it adopted a statehood resolution, which was telegraphed to Congress as a memorial. In view of the fact that both the Republican and Democratic national conventions went on record as favoring immediate statehood for both New Mexico and Arizona, there is every probability that the action desired by those territories will be taken during the present session of Congress.

ANOTHER "ME TOO."

From the Hartford Times.

Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania obtains his reelection to the Senate practically without a contest. All the indications in regard to the succession to Mr. Knox are that the new man will be a sort of "me too" to Penrose. Thus the prospects are that while New York is soon to be relieved of its wretched representation in the Senate the great state of Pennsylvania will cut a smaller figure in the Senate during the next six years than ever before.

OUR ARMY'S STRENGTH.

From the San Francisco Chronicle.

The insufficiency of the present military strength of the United States, even when re-enforced by the National guard, is the chief topic discussed in the annual report of Major-General J. Franklin Bell, chief of staff. It is unlikely that any such system of enforced military training as exists in Germany ever will be introduced in this country, yet it may be noted that the German system has some important merits, quite apart from providing a reserve of trained soldiers. The months in barracks are a valuable means of physical training, and habits of cleanliness, the elements of hygiene, discipline and good order are inculcated. Those who are able to pass the high school examination are required to serve only one year. The enforcement of the examination test as a means of escaping a year in barracks is a great spur to hard work in the schools.

PRESIDENT LOWELL.

From the Chicago Record-Herald.

Professor Lowell is a progressive thinker, a careful student of books as well as of the facts and realities that are the raw material of good books. He evidently has a passion for knowledge and a remarkable capacity for "taking pains" and organizing scattered items into coherent wholes. His latest work, "The Government of England," has been described as "monumental" even by British critics. In the words of one of these critics, Mr. Lowell "handles an enormous mass of detail" in that work "with conspicuous lucidity, accuracy and firmness." His judgments "are temperate and fair," his "tact unfailing," his information and analysis remarkably complete.

These qualities revealed in all of Professor Lowell's books will be as valuable in meeting with practical problems of college education and administration as they have been in exposition and interpretation of political and social affairs.

THE PISTOL THAT MUST GO.

From the Chicago Record-Herald.

The supreme court of Alabama has just had a word to say on the pistol "toting" habit. It has decided that what many call an arbitrary "interference with personal liberty" is justified under the conditions as they exist in the state.

The law that came before it to be passed upon is known as the John law and prohibits the carrying of pistols under two feet in length. That shuts out the pocket variety weapon entirely. It also shuts out the bootleg variety. It makes it impossible for an Alabama man to hide the fact that he is armed unless he covers himself with a Spanish cloak or something fully equivalent in length and looseness.

The supreme court has not only held that the prohibition as to the carrying of short pistols is valid, but further that another feature of the law prohibiting the selling of pistols under the required length or of any supplies for them is also valid.

The detection of those who carry concealed pocket weapons is of course not easy. It will be no easier now than formerly. But the offense when detected will be positive beyond escape through technicality, and it will be graver than any violations of the law concerning weapons have been before.

If, as there is reason to believe, public sentiment is as strongly for the enforcement of this law as for its passage, there should be a favorable showing in the murder records of the state hereafter.

HARVARD'S NEW PRESIDENT.

From the Philadelphia Inquirer.

The selection of Professor Lowell as the successor of President Eliot at Harvard University means that the institution is to be continued along present lines for some time to come. Lowell is a Boston man, a Harvard man, a notable scholar and a man of executive ability. At Harvard the president is a more integral factor in all the affairs of the institution than is common in sister universities. He is very much of a monarch, as the career of Eliot shows.

The forty years of the present incumbency have seen a complete change in the methods of imparting a liberal education. Harvard is no longer a curriculum, but an atmosphere, a place for men and not adolescents. The new president is looked upon as the best equipped man in the country to maintain traditions and at the same time expand with the growing needs of the hour.

It is a pleasure to note that the oldest and in some respects most important seat of learning in the country is to be ruled by a scholar and not by the business man with a gift for bagging, as is the case so common at present. With all the faults of Harvard—real or fancied—the institution is one of importance to America and its future of general interest. That the new head will govern wisely sums the general opinion of those best qualified to judge, and for this there is much to be thankful. With all its own peculiarities Harvard is not a local, but a national institution and its prosperity should be unbounded.

BOOK FAVORITES OF THE CLASS ROOMS.

From the New York World.

In a list of forty-eight books most popular among the children of 11,000 elementary classrooms in New York city, Louisa M. Alcott's "Little Women" stands at the head and Hawthorne's "Wonder Book" at the foot. In the first twenty-five books on the list are five of Miss Alcott's works, including "The Old-Fashioned Girl" and "Little Men." "Robinson Crusoe" is No. 6 and "Alice in Wonderland" is No. 11. Mrs. Burnett's "Sara Crewe" is close to the leader.

Classics one usually considers as food for older minds are scattered through the list, such books as "John Halifax," "Evangeline," "Ivanhoe" and "Merchant of Venice." Tales of Dickens are named, and of course the perennially fresh "Huckleberry Finn" of Mark Twain.

Altogether the list is delightful and encouraging. Of an early purity of taste it offers evidence which is in no wise [illegible] by the fact that the volumes in the school libraries are carefully selected by the Board of Education. The children show in little reviews which they have written that they read the books not merely because they are there, but because they like them. Last year the consecutive circulation of the books from the school shelves approximated 7,100,000.

Not in tenderer years at least do the eyes of the average New York child turn to the [illegible] lights of fiction. It is difficult to understand how [illegible] that have appreciated the charm of the Alcott pages can at any after age find satisfaction in [illegible] literary "shockers."

THE DRIFT IN CITY GOVERNMENT.

From the Springfield Republican.

The city of Portland, Me., is also preparing to adopt a simplified and centralized form of government known as the commission plan. A committee headed by James P. Baxter, five times mayor of the city, submits a scheme in amendment of the present charter, which is expected to have the approval of the city council and the sanction of the state legislature, when it will be voted on by the Portland electorate. It involves the abolition of the present council and the merging of legislative and executive power in the hands of a mayor and four aldermen elected at large for terms of two years from nominations made by petition and without party designations. The mayor is to be paid a salary of $2,500 and the aldermen $2,000, and they are to be required to devote their whole time to the city—which indicates no very clear purpose to draw active business men into the local government.

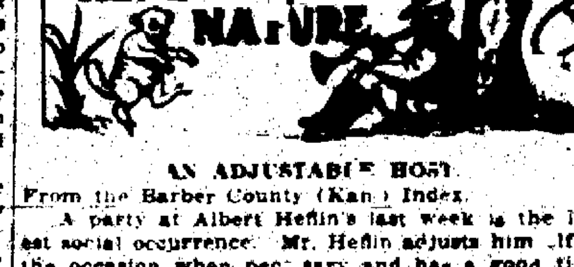

Full power of removal is given to the mayor and aldermen; and city employes are to be chosen under civil service rules. At regular meetings of the mayor and aldermen, who are all coequal in power, any citizen has the right to speak. All proposed ordinances, save those declared urgent, must lie over for ten days before final action and be given publicity; and monthly bulletins of all revenues, expenditures and acts and proceedings of the mayor and aldermen must be issued.—Provision for the recall is made—a petition of 5 per cent of the voters charging incompetence, neglect of duty, malfeasance or other misconduct on the part of any elective official sufficing to bring him before the people for re-election or rejection, as the case may be; and on petition of 100 voters any proposed franchise grants must be submitted to popular vote, and no franchise shall be granted for a longer term than 20 years.

SENATOR TILLMAN'S DEFENSE.

From the New York Times.

There are two moral reflections suitable to Senator Tillman's case. They are both old, very old, yet ever new, since they are continually receiving sanction in every-day human experience. One is that "a good name is rather to be chosen than great riches." The other is "Judge not, that ye be not judged." If Senator Tillman were not the possessor of a good name, if he were not generally believed to be an honest and incorruptible man, his reply to the President's disclosure of his relation to Oregon land transactions would not satisfy the country. There will be a divided public opinion even now, but we think candid men upon an examination of the case will acquit the South Carolina senator on both charges, that of using his senatorial office to promote personal gain, and that of an untruthful statement in debate. Certainly if Mr. Tillman's reputation were the opposite of what it is, his explanation would be received with smiles. His good-name saves him.

The second moral we hope the senator, with a chastened spirit and in all humility, will take home to himself. He has judged and condemned others who may have been as innocent of the act and intent of wrongdoing as he now insists that he himself is, and as we believe him to be. He has been a stern castigator of the transgressions of the rich, of the corporations, of the interests, and of the conduct of his political opponents. Now that he has come himself to be judged on evidence which he declares to be distorted, misunderstood, and totally inadequate, we hope that in future, whenever he is tempted to launch his pitchfork against men in private business or in public life, he will decently pause and examine the grounds of his action, being admonished by his own painful position of human liability to err in judging others. If he will profit by his experience he will be a better man, a more influential senator.

HOW TO FIND A LOST CALF.

From the Nashua (Iowa) Reporter.

A. B. Crandall lost one of his calves Wednesday and he immediately came down to this office and inserted an ad in the Reporter, and, as usual, the result was quick. BEFORE [illegible] DAY

There's nothing in the habit
As any one can see.
I'm going to break off smoking
And from the weed be free
Tomorrow at the latest
I'll throw my pipe away,
So, since I am determined
I'll smoke a while today.

It's just a waste of money,
A burning up of wealth,
It doesn't help the morals,
It doesn't mend the health.
Far better spend my wages
On bills I ought to pay.
I'll chop it off tomorrow,
So light 'er up today.

There's no excuse for being
A slave to such a vice,
Though it were not an object
To salt away the price.
So fare ye well, perfecto,
And rope of twisted hay,
I'm done with you tomorrow
Though friends we are today.

Without regret or longing
Without a single sigh,
Or wish for pleasures passing,
I'll put my meerschaum by
Tomorrow—yes, tomorrow,
I'll smash my pipe of clay;
But if there's no objection
I'll light it up today.

EXTRACT OF SMOKE

From the New York Press.

"Extract of smoke," said the canner, dipping his brush into a pot of brown fluid.

"Extract of smoke?" repeated the dazed reporter.

"Smoke extract," said the canner. He took up a fresh herring, painted it with the dark mixture, and laid it on a board beside a long, long line of brother herrings. "Now, in the past," he explained, "you smoked herrings by hanging them up for days in smoke houses wherein smoldered fires of costly aromatic woods. That process was slow and expensive; we have quite improved it out of existence. We paint our herring now with this really quite harmless chemical extract of smoke—a coal tar product—and as soon as he is dry, he is ready for the market."

The reporter tasted one of the herrings. "But this isn't half as good as the smoked herring of my boyhood," he protested.

"Not as good, perhaps," agreed the canner, "but ever so much more profitable."

AN IOWA LOVE STORY

From the Bismarck Tribune.

A very pretty little story comes from Iowa, having to do with the recent wreck of the North Coast Limited train near McKenzie. It appears that a young lady, the owner of a "beauty parlor," in Des Moines, bade an insistent lover farewell, disposed of her establishment and started west, to be gone a year, telling the young man that if he was faithful for a year he might hope. As the train proceeded westward her resolution grew fainter, but still she was determined to make the test of his affection. And then the train ran off the track, possibly at the instigation of Cupid himself. She suffered a broken ankle, which is more painful if not more serious, than a broken heart, and after she was able to leave the hospital, she went back to Des Moines and her lover. He rejoiced much, she relented, the day was set, and all is well. So some of the other passengers who have suffered from fractured injuries may find consolation in the fact that a railroad accident reunited these separated souls and scored another triumph for Cupid. The moral of it would seem to be that it is well to take the lover when he offers, and not go away on any wild goose chase to test his affection.

Paragraph Pulpit

Unitarian.

All Souls' Church, [illegible]
[illegible] 11 A. M.

THE RELIGION OF LIFE.

YOU are your religion, expressed in terms of abiding character. It is not by your aspirations, but by your acts, that you are judged. That you are Unitarian or Trinitarian in your belief counts less than that you are a good man in life. Religion is not an abstract philosophy, but a living force. It is not a dogma, but deed. It may be fostered in a church, but it must be fulfilled in a character. Never parrot your belief—who cares what you believe? Go live it. The world will judge your religion by you and by you only.

NEW [illegible] OF POETS.

Rat Stirs Pastel into Lyre of a New Bedford Troubadour.

From the New York Sun.

Too long we have lingered in the odorous bowers of the south. Too eagerly have we chased the flying feet of a thousand muses, from Hildauser Park to Richmond, Charlotte, Asheville, and way stations. We return to our old loves. From the stern and rock-bound coast trickles a voice mellower than New England rum and more melodious than the concert of the spheres. The Hon. Anacreon Clifford Hawes, of New Bedford, lifts once more the plectrum and the soul of passion leaps from his lyre. His poem "On Seeing a Rat Scamper From the Wesley Hall, Oak Bluffs, September 11, 1908," has just come to hand. It crowns or recrowns him as the supreme spark of song. Reverently we clip two stanzas from the perfect chrysalite:

Disturber of fair pleasure's quest,
Thou antic thing so beastly; O thou pest,
Thou bestial catamount, such unbecoming doth not wait upon
The soul but strives to daunt one's (I can't sup on. O to think on't)
Finer self. I hope to say in amount
Somewhat as a pup on
Soup is fed that shall hold in hush
And abeyance any harsh word to mankind.
There is many an act that is higher,
And holier than one recks—that's a grand find—

The instant of its utterance. Only
Time doth show forth a great deed; then it's lonely
Haunts it in winsome
True white light. Thy life pathway is more gruesome
Than the sag and trail of smoke (O thou'll stew some)
Toward earth from
The tall mill chimneys when I am at home.
When the air doth moan by
Turns and is sodden and unsatir
The shadows were slanting toward the east, for
I remember it was afternoon
I saw ye scamper to the tang. Go gnaw!"

Whaur's Robbie Browning noo? Let all the poets go gnaw a file. In matter, elegance, facility and golden cadence, Anacreon Clifford Hawes is the king [illegible].

200,000 IDLE FREIGHT CARS

Chicago Dispatch to the New York Press.

Arthur Hale, chairman of the car efficiency committee of the American Railway association, told the members of the Traffic club recently, at their monthly gathering, that more than 200,000 idle freight cars did not spell prosperity according to the latest commercial dictionary. The number of idle freight cars, he said, was almost exactly what it was last year at this time.

"This condition also shows that when Commissioner E. E. Clark was telling you in October, 1907, what the railroads ought to do to take care of the traffic of the country he was talking about what they ought to do in times of phenomenal prosperity. It also shows that the railroads provided abundantly for the traffic of 1906, and that they would have been much better off had they not spent the money to provide the 400,000 cars which were recently standing idle."

AN UNFORGOTTEN DISILLUSION

When you played at bridge with me,
When I saw you lightly make,
As my smiling vis-a-vis,
Every possible mistake,
I forgave you, though I paid
Dearly for the slips you made.

When you played at golf with me,
When your efforts made the ball
Through the green or from the tee
Into every bunker fall
I forgave you though it cost
Many a pang each time we lost.

When you played at love with me,
Ah! what silence then, what skill
Drew me to your feet to be
Now discarded at your will.
Shall I still forgive you? Yes—
Nothing ever grieved me less.

[illegible] WILL SET ASIDE

From the New York World.

"On general principles it is better that the hungry living should be fed than that dead men's graves should have flowers on them."

Such was the reason assigned by Judge Marean, in supreme court, Brooklyn, for setting aside the will of Thomas Driscoll, for many years a well-known resident of Nassau county, and deciding that his estate, valued at $10,000, should be divided among his heirs.

Mr. Driscoll died in 1907, leaving his estate to Trinity church, Rockaway, "to invest and keep invested, and to collect the income derived therefrom and devote it to caring for my burial plot in the cemetery connected with said church."

Soon after the will was admitted to probate an action was instituted in the supreme court by Thomas Driscoll, an heir, for a judicial construction of the will.

In deciding that the trust was void, Judge Marean said:

"In the first place the gift is in trust. The use to be made of the property was an essential element of the gift. If it were a charitable use it would be saved by the law of 1893. But it is not such. The essential characteristic of a charitable use, whether religious, educational, or benevolent, is altruism. It is plain that the disposition of the testator's property has no altruistic quality whatever. It is utterly selfish. A neglected graveyard is a more effective lesson to pride and selfish ambition than the smug and self-satisfied decency that speaks of mercenary care."

Much regret is expressed in motoring circles because of the calling off of the proposed road race in Cuba. It was found impossible to secure a sufficient number of fast cars and prominent drivers to make it a success.

RETAIL MERCHANTS' BIG CONVENTION CLOSES WITH BANQUET AT ANTLERS

Fort Collins Captures Annual Meeting for 1910. Election of Officers and Directors Will Fight Parcels Post Bill and Trading Stamp Fakes.

Amid the brilliant banquet scene presented at the Antlers last evening, the annual state convention of the Retail Merchants association of Colorado was officially ended, after two days' session in this city. Having planned many sightseeing excursions the greater number of the delegates will remain in the city today.

Election of officers, reviews of committee reports and recommendations to the legislative committee filled the closing hours of the convention.

Fort Collins had a clear field in its efforts to secure the convention for 1910. Without any opposition, delegates voted to hold the convention there next year.

Officers Elected.

The following officers and directors were elected: President, J. N. McLellan, Longmont; first vice president, E. S. St. John, Fort Lupton; second vice president, Samuel L. Schon, Pueblo; third vice president, Frank Nelson, Fort Collins; fourth vice president, John D. Thomas, Gold Hill; secretary, H. A. Galbraith, Denver (re-elected); treasurer, W. C. Wilson, Greeley (re-elected.)

Directors: A. P. Wadaworth, Grand Junction; J. E. Udick, Pueblo; John Ferguson, Colorado Springs; W. A. Harris, Goldfield; W. H. Howell, Trinidad; M. T. Murray, W. R. Cherrier, Denver; A. H. Barth, Arvada.

Want Equal Claim on Estates.

Food giving sustenance to a patient in his last illness, is in the view of the convention the basis of as just a claim against an estate as are the accounts of the physician and the undertaker. Under the present law governing the settlement of estates, creditors for food and provisions are made claimants of the fourth class, while the physicians and undertakers are made first-class claimants. The committee on resolutions recommended that the legislative committee take action toward securing an amendment to the law that will place the grocer and meat dealer on an equal basis with the physician and undertaker in securing payment from estates.

Enforce Sunday Closing.

That town and city ordinances relating to Sunday closing of stores where food is sold, be supplemented by an act of the legislature for more speedy and effective enforcement was a recommendation of the resolutions committee. A committee is to be appointed by the board of directors to draft an act to be submitted to the legislature for action.

Delegates declared their intention of arousing sentiment against the proposed parcels post bill, now pending before Congress. They declare the law would prove ruinous to the small dealer.

Garnishee Law Incomplete.

Present conditions wherein United States government employes are exempt from garnishment, does not meet with the favor of the grocers and meat dealers. They propose to ask United States senators and representatives from Colorado to use their efforts in the passage of a law repealing that part of the civil service regulations.

Gift premiums and the trading stamp were given a severe scoring, the attitude of the convention being against such methods of securing trade. Representatives of the association are to confer with officials of the railroads and express companies with the view of putting a stop to the pilfering of fruit and other eatables in transit.

Banquet Great Success.

Good fellowship reigned supreme at the annual banquet given in the Antlers hotel last evening, when more than 350 guests were served. Plants in bloom, palms and cut flowers were the decorations. Fink's orchestra furnished the music. John Ferguson, secretary of Colorado Springs local, and director of the state association, officiated as toastmaster. Responses were given by H. H. Seldomridge, L. W. Cunningham, W. H. Tucker and F. T. Metzler, all of Colorado Springs; National Secretary J. H. Green of Cleveland, O.; Ralph Stevens of Denver, attorney for the state association, and W. J. Gallighan of Loveland.

The principal address at the closing session of the convention was delivered by W. J. Schwarztrauber, president of the St. Louis Retail Grocers association. He said in part:

"The grocers who belong to associations and attend their meetings and conventions, have found out what good an association will do, and has done for them. I, for one, am from Missouri, and I want to tell you, gentlemen, that I do not believe I ever made a dollar until I got into the association.

"I would like to see at the next regular meeting of the Colorado Springs local all of the grocers and meat dealers in the city. They have brought this convention here to show you who do not attend the meetings, just what good the association can do."

COLLEGE AND DENVER U. WILL AGREE ON SPORTS

Representatives of Two Institutions Will Arange Track Meet Baesball and Football Games.

All danger is past of a rupture between Colorado College and Denver university, which was threatened because of the alleged professionalism of several of the players on the Methodist football team last season.

At a conference held in this city yesterday between representatives of the athletic boards and faculties of the two institutions, it was agreed to hold a later meeting for the arrangement of baseball and track meets this spring, and a football game next fall. The date for this meeting was not fixed.

Of scarcely less importance is the settlement of the much-needed eligibility question, which has caused no end of trouble among the colleges of the state for years, principally because of the indefinite system of final settlement. At the conference yesterday it was agreed that a joint committee representing the faculties of both Denver university and Colorado College shall have full control over the eligibility rules of the two institutions. This committee will be named later, each faculty board appointing its own representatives.

A Badge of Honesty

Is printed on the outer wrapper of every bottle of

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription

and it is the only medicine for woman's peculiar ailments, sold by druggists, the makers of which feel fully warranted in thus taking the afflicted into their full confidence.

The more known about the composition of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription the more confidently will invalid women rely upon it to cure their peculiar weaknesses and derangements. There's no secrecy about its make-up—no deceptive inducements held out to the afflicted. It's simply a good, honest, square-deal medicine with no alcohol, or injurious, habit-forming drugs in its composition. Made wholly from roots. It can do no harm in any condition of woman's organism.

Devised and put up by a physician of vast experience in the treatment of woman's maladies. Its ingredients have the indorsement of leading physicians in all schools of practice.

The "Favorite Prescription" is known everywhere as the standard remedy for diseases of women and has been so regarded for the past 40 years and more.

Accept no secret nostrum in place of "Favorite Prescription"—a medicine OF KNOWN COMPOSITION, with a record of 40 years of cures behind it.

It's foolish and often dangerous to experiment with new or but slightly tested medicines—sometimes urged upon the afflicted as "just as good" or better than "Favorite Prescription." The dishonest dealer sometimes insists that he knows what the proffered substitute is made of, but you don't and it is decidedly for your interest that you should know what you are taking into your stomach and system expecting it to act as a curative. To him its only a difference of profit. Therefore, insist on having Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

Send 31 one-cent stamps to pay cost of mailing only on a free copy of Dr. Pierce's Common Sense Medical Adviser, 1008 pages cloth-bound.

BEST TREATMENT FOR CROUP

SUBJECT OF MUCH ANXIETY TO PARENTS OF YOUNG CHILDREN.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy a Certain Cure—Has Never Been Known to Fail.

If your child has ever had croup, you need no description of the symptoms, but to the inexperienced, the peculiar ringing cough is [illegible] until the disease is well under way. A child may go to bed at night in his usual health, except perhaps a cold, only to awaken a few hours later with a well developed attack of croup and the remainder of the night is spent by the anxious parents in trying to relieve his suffering, which is usually done or is experimental. It is usually difficult to secure the services of a physician in the middle of the night, and he should never be depended upon as the case should be treated at once. A bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the home will save anxiety, expense and perhaps the life of the child. When this remedy is given at the first indication of croup, the attack may be avoided, and even after the croupy cough appeared, it will prevent the attack. We have never known it to fail to effect a cure. In any case of croup, and it is, [illegible] in more general use in the United [illegible] than any other [illegible].

STATEHOOD FOR ARIZONA AND NEW MEXICO CERTAIN

Bill Will Be Offered in the House. Opponents Experience a Change of Heart.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—A statehood bill granting the territories of Arizona and New Mexico separate statehood, will be introduced in the House this week. The Republican members of the House committee on territories held two meetings today for the purpose of reviewing the bill prepared by Representative Hamilton of Michigan. Little opposition to the measure is expected in the House. The members who have been known to oppose statehood for two territories, apparently have experienced a change of heart.

FOUR MEN KILLED BY DYNAMITE EXPLOSION

Several Tons of Explosive Let Go at Forcite Powder Works, Newark, N. J.

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 20.—Four men were killed and 10 others injured, one fatally, today, when several tons of dynamite in one of the buildings of the Forcite Powder works at Lake Hopatcong blew up late today. The detonation of the huge mass of explosives shook the country for miles around and blew the building containing it to atoms. Of the 14 men working in it, not one escaped death or injury. The dead:

LOUIS BARTH, aged 50, of Ledgerwood.

CHARLES HENDERSON, 30, Nacong.

JOSEPH SESTAK, 23, Hopatcong Landing.

STEPHEN GLADDES, 28, Nacong.

The explosion occurred in a one-story frame building, where sticks of dynamite were stored. It is presumed that one of the sticks of dynamite piled in the structure was jarred from its resting place and exploded, detonating the whole mass. There were three or four tons of dynamite in the building. The bodies of the killed were mutilated beyond recognition. Several of the other workers in the building were blown a considerable distance, and it is considered remarkable that only one of them—James Boyle—received fatal injuries.

Charcoal Removes Stomach Poisons

Pure Charcoal Will Absorb One Hundred Times Its Volume in Poisonous Gases.

Charcoal was made famous by the old monks of Spain, who cured all manner of stomach, liver, blood and bowel troubles by this simple remedy.

One little nervous Frenchman held forth its virtues before a famous convention of surgeons. Secheyron was his name. He was odd, quaint and very determined. His brothers in medicine laughed at his claims. Thereupon he swallowed two grains of strychnine, enough to kill three men, and ate some charcoal. The doctors thought him mad, but he did not even have to go to bed. The charcoal killed the effects of the strychnine and Secheyron was famous. Ever since that day physicians have used it. Run impure water through charcoal and you have a pure, delicious drink.

Bad breath, gastritis, bowel gases, torpid liver, impure blood, etc., give way before the action of charcoal.

It is really a wonderful adjunct to nature and is a most inexhaustible storehouse of health to the man or woman who suffers from gases or impurities of any kind.

Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges are made of pure willow charcoal, sweetened to a palatable state with honey.

Two or three of them cure an ordinary case of bad breath. They should be used after every meal, especially if one's breath is prone to be impure.

These little lozenges have nothing to do with medicine. They are just sweet, fresh willow, burned to a nicety for charcoal making and fragrant honey, the product of the bee. Thus every ingredient comes to you from the lap of nature.

The only secret lies in the Stuart process of compressing these simple substances into a hard tablet or lozenge, so that age, evaporation or decay may not assail their curative qualities.

You may take as many of them as you wish and the more you take the quicker will you remove the effects of bad breath and impurities arising from a decayed or decaying meal. They assist digestion, purify the blood and help the intestines and bowels throw off all waste matter.

Go to your druggist at once and buy a package of Stuart's Charcoal Lozenges, price 25 cents. You will soon be told by your friends that your breath is not so bad as it was. Send us your name and address and we will send you a trial package by mail free. Address F. A. Stuart Co., 200 Stuart Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

COMMISSIONERS CALL ON GOVERNOR SHAFROTH

Members of State Association Pay Respect to Chief Executive. Want New Laws.

Special to The Gazette.

DENVER, Colo., Jan. 20.—Almost the entire membership of the State Association of County Commissioners called on the governor this afternoon, merely as a mark of respect to the chief executive. The commissioners have three matters that they are pushing before the legislature. The first is a bill to make the water commissioners state officers, paid out of the general treasury, instead of by counties. And they wish to have the water commissioners placed under the civil service rules.

A committee from the Good Roads association met with the commissioners today and the latter agreed to support the bill for a state highway commission.

The commissioners also wish some provision by the state to care for the insane kept in county jails because of the crowded condition of the state [illegible] El Paso county [illegible] reported to have spent $1,900 last year on its insane.

Another change in the laws asked is one to permit the rebuilding of burned or otherwise destroyed bridges at once without advertising, as the present system delays repairs for too long a period.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—The special committee which is to recommend to the House the action that should be taken on the speech of Representative Willett of New York, in which the President was severely criticised, met today. Before final action is taken as to whether the speech should be stricken from the record, the committee will give Representative Willett an opportunity to be heard.

Habitual Constipation

May be permanently overcome by proper personal efforts with the assistance of the one truly beneficial laxative remedy, Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna, which enables one to form regular habits daily so that assistance to nature may be gradually dispensed with when no longer needed as the best of remedies when required are to assist nature and not to supplant the natural functions, which must depend ultimately upon proper nourishment, proper efforts, and right living generally. PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT MANY-SIDED MAN

ADAPTS HIMSELF TO ANY AND AND ALL CONDITIONS.

This One Quality Has Won Him More Friends Than Enemies worthy of Emulation.

By Guy W. Finney.

Special to The Gazette.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Theodore Roosevelt, in his seven odd years of ups and downs as President of the United States, has earned a reputation as a "many-sided man," equal to that of Benjamin Franklin. Certainly, in this respect, the President is the most striking prototype of the revolutionary statesman-philosopher in public life today. Amid the stirring events of the last two or three years, when the "big stick" has been frequently employed to deal sturdy blows here and there, regardless of persons or politics, the chief executive's ability to adapt himself to any and all conditions has been displayed in noteworthy style. It is a quality that has won him more friends than enemies, which would make him seem well worthy of emulation by his able successor.

Take, for instance, the President's reception of Samuel Gompers at the White House. True, it is incumbent upon any chief executive to make a show of cordiality to friends and enemies alike, but who other than Theodore Roosevelt would receive on terms of easy, disarming friendliness so implacable a foe as the president of the American Federation of Labor has shown himself to be? One has only to refer to certain passages, violent, vindictive, ear-splitting, news-making, between this distinguished pair during the November presidential campaign to reason properly that they should stand today as bitter, unforgiving, warring enemies. Not so with Mr. Roosevelt. Tales coming from the White House apropos that recent memorable meeting between Mr. Roosevelt, Mr. Gompers, and his fellow labor leaders tell of something approaching a "love feast."

Greeted With a Smile.

Mr. Gompers, whether his heart was in his mouth, or whether it pulsated normally from behind its accustomed rib, forgot either anger or fear when he crossed the presidential threshold and came within the spell of the Rooseveltian smile. Instead of greeting a lurking enemy, he found a brother; yes, a smiling, beaming brother there with a warm handclasp and ready to let bygones be bygones. There was no knife-behind-the-back truce about this meeting; nor could it be called a "reconciliation." Just a sweet, nerve-soothing meeting as if between old friends, and a spirit of comaraderie hung in the atmosphere that even Secretary Loeb exuded.

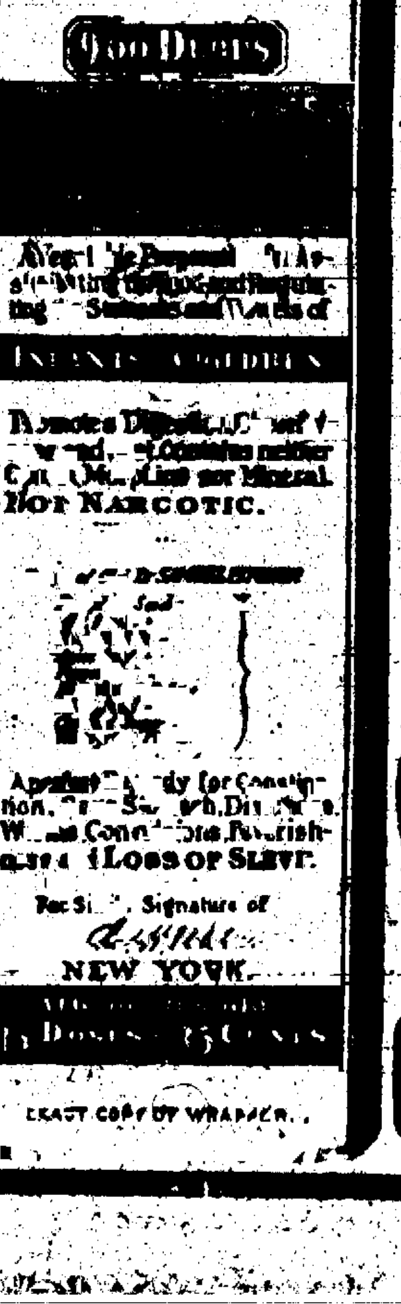

Same way with Senator Foraker and Mr. Harriman, if they only cared to experiment with this side of the President's character. Everybody who has read of the distinguished Ohioan's noisy, demonstrative defense of the black soldiers who "shot up" Brownsville, Tex., his defiance of the "big stick," and his declarations against and denunciations of the executive's "unconstitutional usurpation of power," has naturally assumed, when Mr. Roosevelt called his favorite weapon of offense and defense, the much-heralded "big stick," into play, that he bore his senatorial opponent the most intense hatred possible. Not so with Mr. Roosevelt. For those scars of political warfare he has inflicted on the Ohioan, admittedly done with malice aforethought, as most everybody believes, the President stands ever ready to administer a soothing balm, if Mr. Foraker would only visit the White House.

What of Foraker?

The same warm hand that greeted Mr. Gompers likewise would be extended to Senator Foraker. He would find the "big stick" laid aside for the time, reposing, for want of action, in some dark corner of the executive offices. Temporarily, the inscription of that weapon would be missing from the presidential coat-of-arms, and in its place would be found something symbolic of peace and good-will. Despite their little differences of opinion as to men and issues, Mr. Roosevelt has always entertained, and frequently expressed to newspaper men, a sneaking admiration for Mr. Foraker's fine powers. Though there are some who doubt it, he thinks the Ohio statesman's abilities and his services to the nation outweigh his lapses. Yes, frankly, if the senator went to the White House today, he would be received as are all others, friends and foes, with open arms.

Nor would Mr. Harriman fare differently. Now these men have quarreled, and quarreled bitterly, as the public well knows. Their friendship has certainly been put to the "acid test," but Mr. Roosevelt admires ability in railroad management as he does achievement in the Senate, and that counts in the scale of friendship with him. Senator Tillman hit the nail on the head the other day in the Senate when he referred to Mr. Harriman as "the President's dear friend, Harriman." That is, he literally, though unwittingly, spoke the truth, for if the railroad magnate, no matter how rumpled his feelings at present, only came again to the White House and stood for a moment under the warm rays of the famous presidential smile, there would be no resisting. He, too, would feel this side of the many-sided President.

ALAMOSA, Colo., Jan. 20.—An attempt was made today to derail Denver and Rio Grande train No. 16 at a point between Antonito and Romeo by driving spikes in the rail joints. The obstructions were discovered in time to prevent damage.

What Press Agents Say

[illegible] Y TOO
PROUD TO BEG

[illegible] Carter's melodrama, "Too Proud to Beg," will be at the Opera House Saturday matinee and night.

The story is an interesting one, consistent in every respect, with much feeling and pathos blended THE PLAY is skillfully constructed plot and running through an explosive mix of comedy, with good scenic that are in the band, some clever specialties. Indeed the cast is more than the average.

The play is absolutely free from all shooting and killing, which is most unusual in a popular priced attraction. It is a play which cannot fail to please everybody, children and grownups. There are two very clever child players in the cast, who are considered to be the best on the stage. Children always take especial interest in these young people and their work is watched with great care. The fact that "Too Proud to Beg" is such an all-around, ideal play for children, being free from every undesirable feature, makes it an especially good offering for a matinee, which will be given Saturday afternoon at 25 cents for everybody in any part of the house. Children unaccompanied will be taken care of. Evening prices are 25 cents, 50 cents, 75 cents and $1, according to the location. Seats go on sale today.

"THE RED MILL."

Charles Dillingham's production of "The Red Mill" will be given at the Opera House Tuesday evening.

This is the latest of the Blossom and Herbert musical plays, which scored for an entire year at the Knickerbocker theater, New York city, and duplicated its triumphs by engagements of three months in Chicago, Boston and Philadelphia, and will be presented here in as complete a manner as given during its unparalleled run.

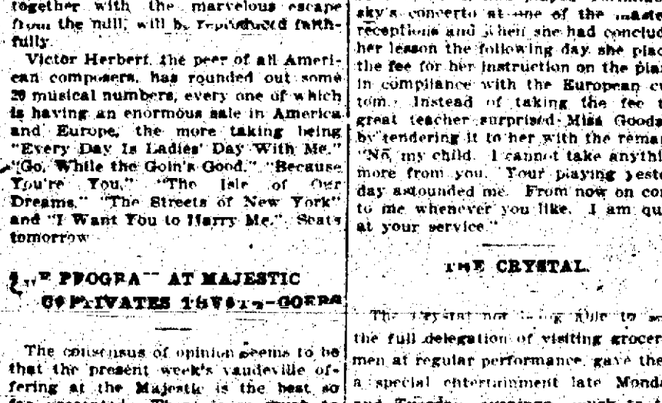

The company numbers some 80 people, including the sextet of Dutch Kiddies, which the metropolis raved over and which in no small way was one of the special features of this musical success. All of the song numbers, the quaint costumes and the dashing girls, together with the marvelous escape from the mill, will be reproduced faithfully.

Victor Herbert, the peer of all American composers, has rounded out some 20 musical numbers, every one of which is having an enormous sale in America and Europe, the more taking being "Every Day Is Ladies' Day With Me," "Go, While the Goin's Good," "Because You're You," "The Isle of Our Dreams," "The Streets of New York" and "I Want You to Marry Me." Seats tomorrow.

NEW PROGRAM AT MAJESTIC
CO-PRIVATES TRIXIE-GORE

The consensus of opinion seems to be that the present week's vaudeville offering at the Majestic is the best so far presented. There is so much to amuse and entertain and the acts follow one another in such rapid sequence that there is never a dull moment and laughter seems to be heard almost continuously.

Pastor and Madge Merle, the act brought from the Antipodes by the Sullivan and Considine circuit, have duplicated here the success they met with in the land of the kangaroo. Miss Merle is a sprightly dancer and contortionist. Her costumes are most striking and she has an excellent voice. Mr. Pastor is a most agile acrobat and comedian.

PASTOR AND MERLE

Eat Foods You Crave

GET THE DIGESTIVE ORGANS IN GOOD CONDITION.

A Little Diapepsin Will Cure You of All Stomach Trouble and Indigestion Almost Before You Realize It.

You can eat anything your stomach craves without fear of a case of indigestion or Dyspepsia, or that your food will ferment or sour on your stomach if you will take Diapepsin after eating.

Your meals will taste good, and anything you eat will be digested; nothing can ferment or turn into acid or poison or stomach gas, which causes Belching, Dizziness, a feeling of fullness after eating, Nausea, Indigestion (like a lump of lead in stomach), Biliousness, Heartburn, Water brash, Pain in stomach and intestines or other symptoms.

Headaches from the stomach are absolutely unknown where this effective remedy is used. Diapepsin really does all the work of a healthy stomach. It digests your meals when your stomach can't. Each triangule will digest all the food you can eat and leave nothing to ferment or sour.

Get a large 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin from your druggist and start taking today and by tomorrow you will actually brag about your healthy, strong Stomach, for you then can eat anything and everything you want without the slightest discomfort or misery, and every particle of impurity and Gas that is in your stomach and intestines is going to be carried away without the use of laxatives or any other assistance.

and the pair get all that is possible out of their little sketch.

One of the best singing and dancing numbers ever seen here is that of Devoy and the Sisters Dayton. Both are pronounced favorites here. Devoy is an excellent eccentric comedian, and he wins many laughs for his odd gyrations while dancing. The sisters are attractive and handsomely costumed and one of their principal hits is the reproduction of the old-time song and dance "sister team." There are not so many exponents of the graceful song and dance of long ago and the Dayton girls' efforts are fully appreciated by the large audiences that have thronged to the Majestic this week.

George Yeomans continues in popular favor. He is the sort of a real German jester that changes his monologue at every performance and keeps his audience in constant good humor.

The novelty act of the bill is, of course, the English Rockers. Miss Laura Jeffray and her quartet of lively "ponies" are credited with being the magnet that has drawn capacity audiences all week. They have more than made good. The act is quite a production in its way, with its frequent changes of costumes, scenery and lighting effects.

For the coming week the management claim to have a surprise in store for their many patrons, when they will present a genuine sensation.

KATHARINE GOODSON.

In the life of Leschetizsky, compiled by Huliah, Katharine Goodson, the English pianist, who is to be heard here at Perkins hall, Thursday, January 28, was named as "one of the master's best pupils." For years Miss Goodson studied with the great pianist. So much has been written about the treatment of women pupils by European music teachers and the commercial character of their dealings that an experience of Miss Katharine Goodson with Leschetizsky is worthy of record. Miss Goodson had played Tschaikowsky's concerto at one of the master's receptions and when she had concluded her lesson the following day she placed the fee for her instruction on the piano, in compliance with the European custom. Instead of taking the fee the great teacher surprised Miss Goodson by tendering it to her with the remark, "No, my child. I cannot take anything more from you. Your playing yesterday astounded me. From now on come to me whenever you like. I am quite at your service."

THE CRYSTAL.

The Crystal now being able to seat the full delegation of visiting grocerymen at regular performance, gave them a special entertainment late Monday and Tuesday evenings, much to the satisfaction of the visitors, who voted it the best performance they had witnessed, which was most gratifying to the management.

The story of "The Castaways" is intensely interesting and you really can't afford to miss it. "The Heroine of the Forge" is another most dramatic story and worth your while. "The Hunchback" is a story that does not lack in interest either. The songs are all new and live ones, too. You will find the full program in the amusement column.

MEN BACK OF NATIONAL FREE EMPLOYMENT BUREAU

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Oscar Straus of the department of commerce and labor has come forward with another proposition quite as much of an innovation as many others which he has inaugurated and carried to success. His latest idea is to have a national free employment bureau open to every one from coast to coast. He has taked the matter up with Thomas Lewis of the labor organization. Samuel Donnelly of the government printing office, Elbert H. Gray of steel fame, and others, and all are carefuly and systematically investigating the field to see if the scheme is a feasible one. No steps have been taken as yet towards completion of this economic problem. Mr. Straus himself is very optimistic about it and says that it is entirely practical. In talking with him recently he designated it as one of the most important subjects before the people. It hits at the root of the unnecessary unemployed. It deals with the men who want to work and who are out of jobs in certain localities, while other localities, perhaps thousands of miles away, desire just such men. Continuing, he said:

"Take, for example, the case of the tinner in New York city who is out of a job. He walks the streets and finds there are other tinners who are unable to find employment. At the present time these men are not sufficiently informed to know where the demand for their line of work is, and yet as a matter of fact 1,000 tinners may be needed in Seattle to work on the buildings of the Alaska-Yukon-Pacific exposition, while four or five hundred metal workers are needed in Chicago, St. Louis and other cities of the middle west.

"Three thousand men are wanted in the fruit belts of California, and yet this man in New York who wants work and is competent is unable to find it."

Another part of Secretary Straus' scheme is to furnish transportation at a minimum rate, to be deducted from the employe's first week's wages. He expects to be able to transport a man from New York to Seattle for $12.50 and to take this out of the man's first week's pay.

Messrs. Powderly and Post of the immigration service are said to be actively backing Secretary Straus in this scheme.

ALTMAN, Jan. 20.—Tracklayers for the Golden Circle road are relaying tracks to the Victor mine, on the eastern slope of Bull cliffs, and regular shipments will shortly be leaving this old-time producer.

The property owned by the Victor Gold Mining company was recently leased to the Western Investment company of Victor, and the upper levels have been subleased to the Rosco Leasing company, a newly-organized operating company. The leasing company has retimbered the shaft to a depth of 350 feet, and has installed an electric hoist. A new ore body has been opened up at the 250-foot level, and the first two cars of ore shipped therefrom have returned values of $30 and $42 a ton.

The Victor Gold Mining company has paid dividends amounting to $1,156,000, but the last distribution was made in December, 1896.

FOUR-OUNCE ORE IN THE STRONG MINE

BEST VALUES EVER SECURED FROM PROPERTY.

Millions Paid in Dividends to Shareholders—Sinking Now in Progress.

Special to The Gazette.

VICTOR, Jan. 20.—On an average of four cars a day are billed out from the Strong mine, in this city, and, while accurate figures cannot be secured, it is learned on credible authority that the ore is returning values of close to four ounces gold to the ton. This rich ore is coming from one of the strongest and richest ore shoots exposed to date in this Battle Mountain property. It is located at the 1,000-foot level, and the shoot is reported in excess of 800 feet in length, without a break, and the ore is broken therefrom eight to 15 feet wide. Sinking is now in progress from the 1,000-foot level, and will be continued until water prevents further sinking. Should a depth of 1,100 feet be reached, it will correspond with the 1,500-foot level of the Portland No. 2 shaft, at which depth immense ore bodies are also being developed.

While it is impossible to secure accurate data as to the gross production of the Strong, it is a matter of record that up to December, 1903, the company had paid its few shareholders the enormous sum of $2,475,000 in dividends, and has paid probably not less than $1,000,000 since that date. The total acreage owned by the Strong company will not exceed eight acres, and the production from so small an acreage is the more remarkable.

TRADING ON STOCK MARKET IS LISTLESS

Perceptible Growth of Disinclination on Part of Operators to Deal in Securities.

NEW YORK, Jan. 20.—There was a perceptible growth today of the disinclination to deal in stocks, which has been increasing for several days past. The first hour of the session showed a spurt of activity which seems to be due to hopeful testing operations by the professional element. With the failure of these efforts to arouse any interest or to attract any following, the market lapsed into neglect and at times into stagnation, with possibly another little flurry of activity in the final hour.

One repressive factor at work in the whole financial world is the waiting for the outcome of the Russian loan, which is to be issued in Paris on Friday. There is no doubt of the entire success of this loan, but there is a good deal of uncertainty as to what will follow in the money and international exchange markets. The usual consequences of the emission of such a huge loan is a relaxing tendency in the money market as payments are affected and funds released, which had been accumulated in overpreparation.

Today the New York Central directors adjourned once more with the announcement that only routine matters had been considered. This puts off again the supposed entry of E. H. Harriman and associates into the directorate, which has been said to be imminent many times. There was some disappointment also over the nonaction of the New York public service commission on the Erie's application for an issue of $30,000,000 bonds. There was a reversal of sentiment over the remarks of the president of Interborough-Metropolitan to his stockholders regarding the probable purchase of the Interborough street railway; and the contribution of funds for that purpose was considered as a privilege rather than as an assessment. A decline in Amalgamated Copper was a response to the reports of unfavorable conditions in the copper trade. Except in special cases, the day's changes proved insignificant. Affairs were almost as much at a standstill in the money and exchange markets as in stocks.

Bonds were irregular. Total sales, par value, $5,584,000. United States 2s, coupon, advanced ¼ per cent on call.

A RELIGIOUS AUTHOR'S STATEMENT.

For several years I was afflicted with kidney trouble and last winter I was suddenly stricken with a severe pain in my kidneys and was confined to bed eight days unable to get up without assistance. My urine contained a thick white sediment and I passed same frequently day and night. I commenced taking Foley's Kidney Remedy, and the pain gradually abated and finally ceased and my urine became normal. I cheerfully recommend Foley's Kidney Remedy. Sold by all druggists.

WHEAT MARKET TAKES ON A VIGOROUS TONE

Congestion in May Delivrey Causes Renewed Activity—Prices Up at Close.

CHICAGO, Jan. 20.—The feature of trade in the wheat pit today was the congestion in the May delivery, which resulted in a highly vigorous market. During the latter part of the day, however, sentiment in the pit was decidedly bullish; and at the close prices were at the highest point. Continued small receipts in the northwest formed the basis of much of the strength, although the light movement was partially offset by a decline in the price of wheat at Liverpool. Arrivals today at Minneapolis and Duluth were only 114 cars, against 341 cars the corresponding day a year ago. A leading commission house, which has a wealthy local and out-of-town clientage, was reported to have purchased more than 1,000,000 bushels of the May delivery during the day, and this buying caused an advance of 1 cent for that option from the low point of the session. Other deliveries showed strength. At the close, May sold at $1.07⅞@⅞ and July at 98⅛@¼. Clearances of wheat and flour equaled 42,000 bushels.

An official forecast of wet weather for the corn belt had a strengthening effect on the corn market, but the volume of trading was light. An advance of ⅛ to ½ in the price of cash grain was bullish influence. The market closed firm, with May at 61⅝ and July at 62⅛.

Oats were firm on good demand by a leading elevator interest. The market closed firm, with May at 51⅞@⅞ and July at 46⅝@⅝.

Heavy purchases of pork by traders, with usual operations in the grain pit, imparted considerable strength to provisions. The close was firm, with prices up 2½ to 35, compared with the previous close.

WEARS SNAKE IN HIS HAT.

Writhing on Bald Pate Keeps "Misery" Out of Face.

From the St. Louis Republic.

James Barker, a bachelor, 72 years old, living at Windom, in St. Louis county, has a snake in his hat. Others have had snakes in their hats, and also in their boots, but Barker is a temperate, although not a healthy man. He keeps this snake in his hat, he says, because it is a sure cure for the most violent form of neuralgia.

Recently he visited the court house at Clayton to get on the pauper list. While waiting to have the blank filled out he took off his hat. Reposing in the top of his headpiece was a snake. County Clerk Ruhl was frightened when he saw it. Knowing his own sobriety, he wanted to test it on the negro janitor, and had him investigate.

Then they asked the bachelor for an explanation. He said he suffered untold agony from neuralgia, which caused his face to swell to large proportions. A friend told him to put a snake in his hat.

Now the snake is writhing inside his hat, and he is bothered no more. Barker says he would rather have the snake writhe on his head than writhe with pain himself.

In any event, the snake slides down the incline of his bald pate inside the hat, and now he has no more neuralgia than has the court house tower.

RUSSIA'S BIVOUAC CAR.

From the London Times.

A correspondent writes that the army authorities in Germany are considering the adoption of a transportable bivouac car, the invention of a Russian engineer. After the car, which is readily hauled by a pair of horses, has arrived at its destination, two levers, terminating in anchors, are dropped onto the ground. These levers maintain the rear wheels in position, while the front wheels are carried along by the horses until the car is drawn out to a length of 25 meters. The car then consists of several compartments, each constituting a room with three windows, and a passage communicating with the main exit. The compartments are arranged in two stories, and a staircase connects the entrance with the upper floor. The whole structure constitutes a lengthy building, including in its two stories twelve compartments for soldiers, an officers' cabin and a sergeant's office. Each of the compartments is provided with any necessary pieces of furniture (beds, tables, etc.), arranged so that each of them during the closing of the car is folded up automatically. The officers' cabin is provided with electric light, writing desk, looking glass, washstand, etc. At the rear end of the car an observatory tower is arranged which can be raised to a height of 30 meters. This tower can also be used as a wireless telegraphy station.

DECREASE IN OCEAN TRAFFIC.

From the New York Herald.

Although the total number of all classes of passengers carried by Transatlantic steamship lines during 1908 has fallen considerably below the figures of 1907, the better class of travel has shown the least decrease. The first cabin decrease eastbound amounts to 7,300 less than the year before, when 100,286 voyagers of this class left for Europe. In 1907 13,200 more passengers came in first class than in 1908.

In the second cabin the outgoing travel shows a decrease of 2,200 and westbound 62,000, an indication of a smaller number of the better class of immigrants than in 1907. In the third class eastbound traffic was very heavy.

The total number of passengers carried last year was 1,530,161, and in 1907 2,457,325. Steamship agents are looking forward to a busy year in 1909, and predict that the first-class travel will be far above any previous season.

Danger In Delay

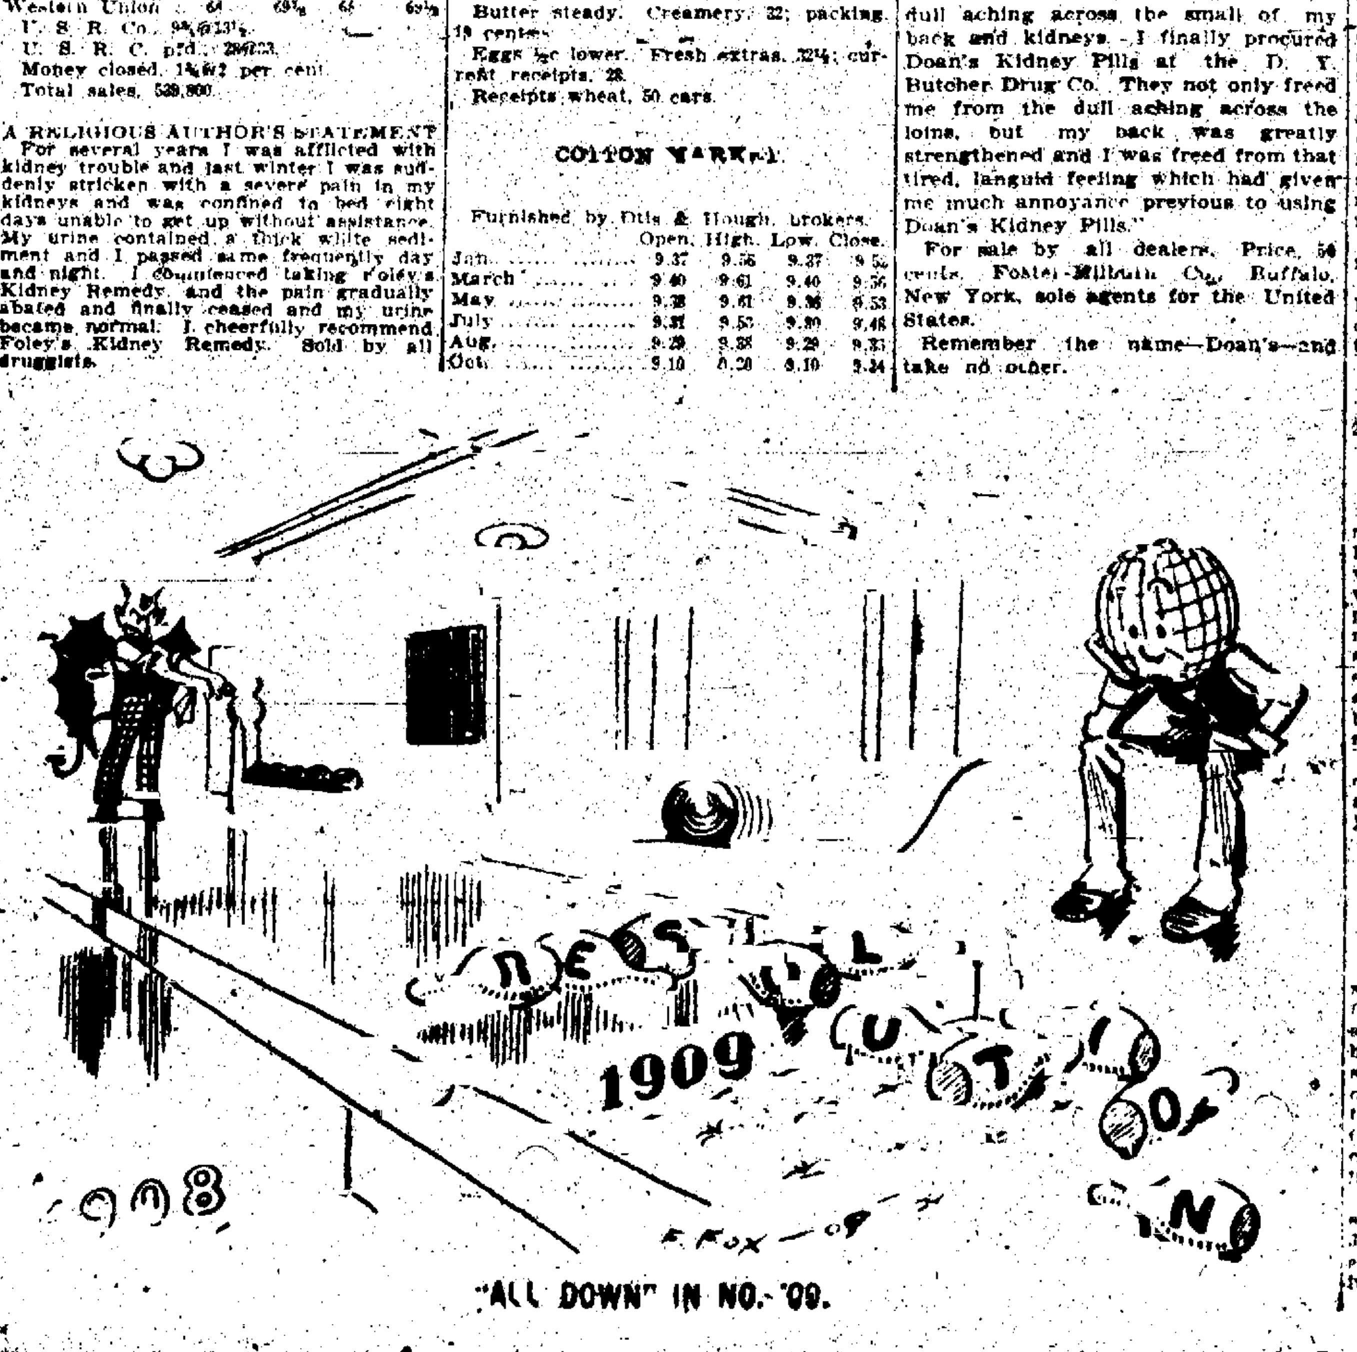

Kidney Diseases Are Too Dangerous for Colorado Springs People to Neglect.

The great danger of kidney troubles is that they get a firm hold before the sufferer recognizes them. Health is gradually undermined. Backache, headache, nervousness, lameness, soreness, lumbago, urinary troubles, dropsy, diabetes and Bright's disease follow in merciless succession. Don't neglect your kidneys. Cure the kidneys with the certain and safe remedy, Doan's Kidney Pills, which has cured people right here in Colorado Springs.

Mrs. L. T. Johnson, of 116 South Fourteenth street, Colorado Springs, Colo., says: "I can certainly speak very highly of Doan's Kidney Pills. I suffered for some time from a constant dull aching across the small of my back and kidneys. I finally procured Doan's Kidney Pills at the D. Y. Butcher Drug Co. They not only freed me from the dull aching across the loins, but my back was greatly strengthened and I was freed from that tired, languid feeling which had given me much annoyance previous to using Doan's Kidney Pills."

For sale by all dealers. Price, 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Start Right

In any undertaking a good start is half the battle. Resolve that you will begin the new year right; and after getting a good start, make the most of it. For example, why not open an account with THE ASSURANCE SAVINGS AND LOAN ASSOCIATION? You would thus secure good interest on your money and accumulate a fund that would be available for any useful purpose.

AN IDEAL RANCH HOME

There are few homelike ranch properties to be had within twelve miles of Colorado Springs. We are able to offer you an ideal ranch-home to the north of this city. This ranch comprises eight hundred acres, mostly choice agricultural land, with abundance of running water; in five fields. Also springs and wells. This land is underlaid with coal, and there is a valuable deposit of fire clay. Both coal and fire clay are contiguous to two railroads, and the building of spurs is all that is necessary to load these products directly into cars for shipment.

There is a large, well-built house of six rooms and a large barn and other buildings and corrals. Fine spring running close to the house.

Might consider exchanging for city property.

We are able to name a price of $12,000 on this property.

The undeveloped resources of this property warrant the prediction that this ranch will sell for double the price now asked within five years.

The development of its resources, even to a limited extent, will insure such advance in price.

FOR SALE REAL ESTATE.

I DON'T WANT TO GO

But sickness and death among my near relatives in Virginia compels me to leave. I have a small ranch of 10 acres, about 5 miles down the Fountain; under the big reservoir; plenty of water. Place is all in alfalfa, garden and young fruit trees; is fenced and all ditches and all laterals in; is fenced and has a large building that would make a good barn; splendid cemented well; land lays splendidly, well drained and easily irrigated; the use of a large pasture of about 300 acres goes with the place. The price is $1,500, on a cash basis, or I would trade for a property in town that I could get an agent to take care of for me.

This is a nice little place, and if you want to raise chickens, keep some cows, raise vegetables and live right, it will suit you.

DON'T ANSWER UNLESS YOU MEAN BUSINESS.

Address J. R., Box 1[illegible], Colorado Springs, Colo.

FOR SALE—By owner, 9-room, modern home, north, whole lot, east front, car line. Will take good lot in trade. Address A-43, Gazette.

21 ACRES of improved, irrigated land, close in, good water right, for sale or rent or trade for good town property. Call at 1109 E. Cimarron St., near Prospect lake.
